[illegible] IN FAVOR OF FIELD.

[illegible] 12.—[Special.]—Casey Young [illegible] the tenth district of [illegible] in speaking to a local inter[illegible] the Tilden letter of declination, [illegible] warmly advocated the [illegible] Field, of California. "Now [illegible] the way," remarked Mr. Young, [illegible] strongest man. I have been all [illegible] and made particular inquiries [illegible] of Judge Field. I tell you can[illegible] that the opposition [illegible] is confined to the hoodlum ele[illegible] respectability and substantial [illegible] and he would carry the state. [illegible] among whom are Repre[illegible] Ex-Representative Manning, [illegible] for the nomination of [illegible]

[illegible] INTERVIEWED.

[illegible] 12.—[Special.]—Frank Pixley was [illegible] your reporter, who said [illegible] the Pacific coast delegation a large share of the honor for Blaine's nomination." Pixley said: "This is due probably to the fact that the delegation represented the universal sentiment of the republicans of the Pacific coast, and had no individual ax to grind. It was a strong delegation with considerable talking talent. It got up early and worked late. Its movements were well timed and effective. Altogether it made a good impression in behalf of the Pacific coast. The California members who have gone to Maine are Judge Blake, McClure, Knight, Bush, Reed, Saunders, Denison and Johnson. Their object is merely to pay spontaneous tribute to Blaine."

The reporter asked: "How does eastern sentiment on the nominations impress you?"

Pixley said: "I find the only two dark spots in the whole country through which I have traveled to be this city and Boston, and the two classes of republicans in opposition are free traders and ultra-conservative gentlemen, who want peace and are afraid of Blaine's aggressiveness. The masses are undoubtedly for Blaine. In the regions through which I have traveled I find the enthusiasm with which he was nominated extend along the road, even into this state. I saw no evidence of disaffection in the rural districts here or in New England. I shall leave here to-morrow for Chicago, and thence homeward."

ROOSEVELT REPUDIATES AN INTERVIEW.

NEW YORK, June 12.—[Special.]—The Evening Post says: "This paper telegraphed Theo. Roosevelt Tuesday as follows: 'A St. Paul dispatch reports you as saying the republican platform is admirable; you will not bolt; you have no personal objections to Blaine; that Blaine can carry all New England and possibly New York. Does this represent what you have said?' To this we this morning received the following, from Medora, Dakota, dated June 12: 'To my knowledge I had no interview for publication, and never said anything like what you report. I may have said that I opposed Blaine for public reasons, not personal to myself. THEO. ROOSEVELT.'"

THE PLATFORM ATTACKED.

NEW YORK, June 12.—[Special.]—The evening Post discloses the true character of some of the independent republicans in these parts, by a violent attack on the republican platform, because it brazenly denounces the importation of contract labor. It says the phrase "contract labor" is devoid of any peculiar meaning.

BLAINE'S INTENTIONS.

PHILADELPHIA, June 12.—[Special.]—A Press special says: Blaine will probably visit New York June 26, to be present at the organization of the republican national committee. Thus far only two names are mentioned in connection with the chairmanship—Ex-Senator Chaffee and Stephen B. Elkins. After the meeting of the committee Blaine will take a trip over the West Virginia road, of which he is a director. This will be a tour of inspection, planned several months ago, and while it will probably be regarded as a political movement, has really no such significance, unless Blaine should be induced to make speeches there. After the West Virginia trip Blaine will spend a few days at Deer Park, Md., before entering on the work of the campaign. His friends say it is more than probable that he will take the stump in West Virginia, Ohio, New York, Connecticut, Massachusetts and Indiana.

HOW MEXICO RECEIVES THE NOMINATION.

CITY OF MEXICO, via Galveston, June 12.—The newspapers continue discussing the nomination of Blaine, which is generally regarded as a threatened evil for Mexico. La Libertad and Americas says it hopes for the election of Blaine, for Mexico has more to fear from a friendly president than one who is avowedly hostile, regarding it as more to the interest of Mexico to deal with her neighbor in a spirit of want of confidence and reserve than to hob nob with traitors, who pretend to be friends in order to become masters.

THE CALIFORNIA DELEGATES.

CONWAY, N. H., June 12.—The California delegates arrived here to-day and leave for Boston to-morrow where they separate, to meet at Chicago the 29th. McClure goes to Bangor.

FOREIGN DISPATCHES.

ENGLAND.

TO OVERAWE THE LORDS.

LONDON, June 12.—A popular demonstration in favor of the franchise bill has been arranged to take place in London in August next. It will be the greatest popular display ever seen in London since 1867. Trades, agricultural and laborers' unions throughout the country are sending deputations to take part in the arrangements for the demonstration. The movement is meant to overawe the house of lords.

WOMAN SUFFRAGE AMENDMENT DEFEATED.

LONDON, June 12.—In the house of commons this evening Woodall's amendment to the franchise bill, in favor of female suffrage, was rejected by a vote of 27 to 136. Gladstone stated during the course of the debate that if the amendment were adopted the government would not be answerable for the passage of the bill.

BRADLAUGH MAKES A DENIAL.

LONDON, June 12.—Charles Bradlaugh denies the story published by the Dublin Freeman's Journal yesterday, to the effect that he had written a letter to the prince of Wales, asking him, as a brother Mason, to lend his support to an atheistical propaganda.

A PAYING BUSINESS.

LONDON, June 12.—General Booth, head of the salvation army, is treating for the purchase of Patti's castle and estate in Wales for a family residence. General Booth is said to be making large profits as leader of the salvation army.

STATUE OF JOHN BROWN ERECTED.

LONDON, June 12.—The queen was present at the erection to-day, at Balmoral, of a bronze statue of John Brown, which represents his features in Highland costume. The statue was placed within view of the queen's apartments.

WILL BORE FOR OIL.

LONDON, June 12.—The Indian government has decided to procure boring machinery, owing to the discovery of oil-bearing strata in Sibi, and develop the resources in that region.

THE EGYPTIAN CONFERENCE.

LONDON, June 12.—Preparations for the Egyptian conference, which meets in London July 10, are being rapidly pushed to completion by officials in the foreign office.

LIVERPOOL GRAIN MARKET.

LIVERPOOL, June 12.—The weather in England is favorable. Breadstuffs are dull, and inclined to drop.

LONDON WOOL SALE.

LONDON, June 12.—At the wool sales to-day 9500 bales of Sydney and Port Phillip wool were sold.

THE WAR IN THE SOUDAN.

THE SURRENDER OF BERBER CONFIRMED.

LONDON, June 12.—The Times' correspondent telegraphs from Wady Halfa that Berber surrendered twelve days ago, so the reports already received in London were true. The correspondent is informed that the rebel General Aboul has collected 10,000 men around Berber. After the fall of Berber 3,000 Arabs were sent to Dongola. The governor of Dongola, ignorant of the surrender of Berber, telegraphed to Wady Halfa, but no news has come down the river. This directly conflicts with the statement in the commons, by Fitzmaurice, under foreign secretary, that a messenger from Berber reported the city safe as late as June 3. Until reports of unquestionable authority arrive Berber is considered problematic.

EGYPTIAN CORRESPONDENCE MADE PUBLIC.

LONDON, June 12.—The Egyptian correspondence of the government has been made public. In a recent message to General Gordon, Earl Granville, foreign secretary of state, says: "Inasmuch as the original plan of evacuating the Soudan has been dropped, General Gordon should consider measures for removing himself and the faithful Egyptians with him from their present position." The foreign secretary authorizes General Gordon to expend whatever money may be necessary for the purpose.

EL MAHDI DEFEATED.

LONDON, June 12.—A dispatch has been received from the governor of Dongola stating that El Mahdi has been crushingly defeated by the Takalla tribes.

GERMANY.

BISMARCK MAKES A PEACE PROPOSAL.

BERLIN, June 12.—Prince Bismarck has proposed that the difficulty between Servia and Bulgaria be referred to the mediation of Austria and Russia. Servia has accepted the proposal.

BERLIN, June 12.—The cabinets at Vienna and St. Petersburg have joined the Berlin cabinet for the purpose of intervening between Servia and Bulgaria on a definite settlement of the frontier difficulties. Orders have been sent to Sophia and Belgrade to disarm their frontier posts.

BERLIN NOTES.

BERLIN, June 12.—The abdication of the duke of Hesse is expected, as a result of his marriage with and subsequent divorce from Mme. Kalomine, which created such widespread comment.

The National Gazette announces that the committee on the bourse tax, appointed by the bundesrath has approved the government proposals, in a slightly modified form.

CHINA.

PEACE REIGNS SUPREME.

PARIS, June 12.—Advices from China report that Admiral Lespes, commander of the French squadron in Chinese waters, has arrived at Tien-Tsin from Pekin, and departed for Che Foo. The relations of Admiral Lespes while at Pekin with the council for foreign affairs were of a highly satisfactory nature. Members of the council dined with the French admiral and gave a banquet in return.

TURKESTAN.

DISASTROUS WATERSPOUT.

LONDON, June 12.—News has just reached here that a waterspout occurred in Akulsk, Russian Turkestan, June 2. The river was overflowed and seventy houses destroyed. Forty persons were drowned.

FRANCE.

BULL FIGHTS FORBIDDEN.

PARIS, June 12.—The minister of the interior has issued a decree forbidding bull fights. Disgusting scenes of cruelty have recently been witnessed at bull fights in various parts of France.

Was it Rip Van Winkle?

Hartford Courant.

A strange apparition attracted much attention on the streets of Hartford last Saturday. It was an old man clad in a long, black, shaggy fur overcoat, which dropped below his knees, his pantaloons were ragged and torn, coming a little above his shoe tops, showing his large limbs. He had hung on a pole, which he carried over his shoulder, holding it in his left hand, a pair of pants, an old coat, a pair of old hose, a shirt, and a number of other articles. In his right hand he carried a large stick; his long gray hair hung down over his forward-bent shoulders, and his head was protected by an ancient felt hat. A small yellow dog walked close to his heels.

DOMESTIC DISPATCHES.

Financial Circles Again Agitated by Bearish Rumors.

ARREST OF A DYNAMITER AT KEY WEST.

Destructive Flood in Pennsylvania—Serious Illness of Bishop Simpson—Big Fire at Boston—General News.

GALVESTON, June 11.—Suits involving $50,000 were to-day instituted here against Grant & Ward and James D. Fish of New York. Elihu Spicer, plaintiff, first alleges that on July 11, 1883, Ward executed and delivered to Spicer a promissory note for $20,000, with 6 per cent. interest until paid, and to secure payment of the same deposited with the defendants, as collateral, 591 shares of Yonkers' smelter stock, 1600 shares of Freeland mining stock and 3174 shares of Tabor mining stock. Spicer seeks to collect his $20,000 and interest by bringing suit in this county, suing out a garnishment against Berg & Co. of this city, who are indebted heavily to Ward. A petition of C. H. Mallory & Co. against Grant & Ward alleges that on April 14, 1884, Grant & Ward executed six promissory notes for $5000 each, payable to James D. Fish of the Marine National bank; that Fish indorsed the notes in blank, and for a consideration transferred them to plaintiffs. Garnishment against Berg & Co. was also issued in this suit. Mallory and Spicer give garnishment bonds for $15,000.

THE AIR FILLED WITH RUMORS.

NEW YORK, June 12.—Wall street is flooded with unfavorable rumors. It was reported that the First National bank of Cleveland has suspended, but advices state that the institution is doing business as usual. It is rumored that the government experts have discovered a deficiency of $20,000,000 in the Union Pacific sinking fund, and that the money was used to sustain the market value of the stocks. President Dillon states that the company has done nothing whatever in stock, and that not a dollar was used for such purpose. It was further stated that a serious washout had occurred on the Central Pacific at Humboldt, but this was officially denied by the company's agent at San Francisco. These reports made the market weak and feverish, and prices declined sharply. Subsequently the market was steady.

THE REPORT STILL SECRET.

WASHINGTON, June 12.—The report of the experts who examined the books of the Union Pacific Railway Company was handed to Secretary Teller yesterday in a sealed envelope. It was at once locked in a safe without being read by the secretary or any one in his office. It is asserted positively that there has been no information given out concerning the character of the report, and that nothing can be known of its contents until Secretary Teller returns, who left for New York this morning. Commissioner Armstrong is also absent from the city. No one has seen the report except the commissioners and experts who made the examinations.

HATCH MAKES A CORRECTION.

NEW YORK June 12.—Mr. Hatch, of the firm of Hatch & Foote, said to-day that an erroneous impression had gone abroad in regard to the terms in which the firm proposed to settle with its creditors. He stated that the following was the basis of the firm's settlement, which was now being submitted to its creditors: Twenty-five per cent. in cash, 50 per cent. in securities which are worth their par value and twenty-five per cent. in notes of the firm, after they have resumed. This proposition is to be submitted to the creditors.

SUSPENSION AT CHARLESTON.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., June 12.—The doors of the state bank of West Virginia in this city were closed this morning. Liabilities $119,000. Many rumors are afloat. The proposition is that the bank will pay 50 per cent., but it is doubtful if it pays over 20. Officials of the bank received deposits yesterday up to 3 o'clock. Depositors are anxiously waiting an investigation. Excitement runs high, and but little business has been done here to-day. A slight run was made on the Kanawha Valley bank when its doors opened at 9 o'clock this morning, but as every check was promptly paid, the run ceased after an hour's time.

THE CLEVELAND BANKS SOLID.

CLEVELAND, June 12.—Reports have reached here from other cities of trouble in one of Cleveland's banks, but they are without foundation. The defalcations by the paying teller of the National Bank of Commerce had no perceptible effect on the bank's affairs. "The Cleveland banks are perfectly sound and in a solvent condition," a clearing house officer stated to-day noon to an associated press reporter.

IN WALL STREET.

NEW YORK, June 12.—Governments quiet. Stocks were strong and higher in early dealings, with Missouri Pacific as the feature. Compared with the closing of last night the market was irregularly changed. The principal declines were Burlington 1½, Union Pacific 2½, Pullman 1, and St. Paul preferred 2⅜. The most important advances were Canadian Pacific 1½, Omaha 1⅛, New York Central 1⅜, and Missouri Pacific 2⅞. Out of thirty-four stocks traded in to any extent eighteen closed higher.

MONEY, BONDS AND STOCKS.

NEW YORK, June 12.—Money, easy at 2@3. Closed offered at 2. Prime mercantile paper, 5@6. Sterling exchange, bankers' bills, firm at $4 84½; demand, $4 86½.

Bonds—3s 101¼, 4½s 110¾, 4s 119¾, Pacific 6s 123.

Stocks—American 92, Canada Pacific 42½, Canada Southern 35⅝, Central Pacific 44, Burlington 11[illegible], Lackawanna 97½, Denver & Rio Grande 19¾, Erie 14½, Hannibal & St. Joe 38½, Kansas & Texas 14½, Lake Shore 85, Louisville & Nashville 27½, Michigan Central 66¾, Northern Pacific 20¼, Northern Pacific preferred 45½, Northwestern (ex-div.) [illegible], New York Central 104¾, Oregon Navigation 70, Oregon and Transcontinental 11¾, Oregon Improvement 19, Pacific Mail 30¾, Panama 98, Rock Island [illegible], St. Paul 69¾, Texas Pacific 10¾, Union Pacific 28¾, U. S. Express 47, Western Union 59.

Petroleum firm at 72.

RAILROAD NOTES.

ELECTION OF DIRECTORS.

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., June 12.—The election of the directors of the St. Joseph and Western railroad took place to-day at Western St. Joseph, Kan. The Union Pacific interest and the Benedict party were equal in number of shares represented, and by mutual understanding the following directors were chosen, making about an equal division between the two interests: Sidney Dillon of New York; Frederick L. Ames, Elisha Atkins, Ezra H. Baker, F. Gordon Dexter, Henry McFarland and Charles F. Adams, all of Boston; James A. Benedict, Francis W. Williams, James O. Parrish and William C. Strauss, all of New York; Elish C. Benedict of Connecticut, and Winslow Judson of St. Joseph. The only appearance of dissatisfaction at the meeting was a protest filed by John C. Stanton of New York against the voting of 8000 shares of stock held by Sidney Dillon, which he claimed was illegally issued by the Union Pacific Company for the purchase of the Hastings and Grand Island extension. Mr. Stanton claims this line was built by the St. Joseph and Western Company, and paid for out of its treasury. Hence, as it has always owned it, it could never have purchased it.

THE TURF.

THE RACES AT ST. LOUIS.

ST. LOUIS, June 12.—The races were continued here to-day. The weather was clear and warm, the track fast and the attendance good.

First race, seven furlongs—Ballar won by a length, Niphon second, a length in front of Bob Sedam third. Time, 1:32.

Second race, selling allowance, one mile—Charley Lucas finished first by a length, Nimblefoot second half a length in front of Manitou, third. The winner was bought in by the owner at no advance. Time, 1:46½.

Mile and an eighth—Freeland finished first, John Henry second, Ballet third. Time, 1:58½.

Third race, purse of $300, all ages, three-quarters of a mile heats—In the first heat Jocosa came in winner by a length, Nora M. second, Bonnie Bird third. Time, 1:19½. Jocosa finished first in the second heat by two lengths, Bonnie Bird second, Kate Prine third. Time, 1:19.

THE STAGE.

OPPOSED BY THE ELEMENTS.

MINNEAPOLIS, June 12.—The last concerts of the June festival were held amid storms of thunder and lightning, and rain. Lightning struck the coliseum this afternoon, causing a panic in the audience attending the children's concert, but prompt action on the part of several resolute men and women, especially Theodore Thomas, who, finding that the building was not on fire, signaled the orchestra to proceed, prevented any one being seriously injured, though several ladies were carried fainting from the room.

THE ACTORS' FUND.

NEW YORK, June 12.—At a meeting of the trustees of the actors' fund it was decided to request all actors to give 5 per cent. of their salaries for the [illegible], 20th and 10th weeks of their engagement to the fund.

SPORTING NOTES.

MATCH BETWEEN BIBBY AND SARAKICHI.

BALTIMORE, June 12.—[Special.]—A wrestling match last night between Bibby and the Japanese wrestler resulted in the first round for Bibby, after a thirty-five-minutes' struggle. The second round was Japanese holds, and continued twenty-five minutes. Sarakichi caught up Bibby and threw him so that one hand touched the ground, and the fall was the second for the Jap. A heavy rain caused a postponement of the match until Saturday.

THE FIRE RECORD.

BIG BLAZE AT BOSTON.

BOSTON, June 12.—Fire is now burning the building occupied by the National Rubber and the New Brunswick Rubber Company. The three upper stories were burned. An explosion of naphtha on the second floor burned three firemen, who are seriously injured. The loss will be heavy. Insurance, $400,000 on stock and $275,000 on the buildings.

Why he Loved Sugar.

New York Morning Journal.

"Put a bit in your mouth," retorted the mule dealer, "and I'll tell you. This mule I was about to speak of could stand longer under trying circumstances than any brute I ever saw. Up in Park avenue, for instance, I've known him to stand from one week's end to the other and never turn a hair. All you wanted to do was to give him a little sugar occasionally, and you couldn't move him. Rain, hail, wet or dry, he'd stand there and let everything go by."

"Who the deuce had trained him?" asked the amazed dog fancier.

"He once belonged to a United States deputy marshal," returned the mule fancier, "and that's where he got his love for sugar."

Special from Waltham, Mass.

Fifteen hundred watches are now made daily at Waltham, and they are better in quality and lower in price than ever before.

Chinese Arrivals in New York.

NEW YORK, June 12.—[Special.]—Lu Chan Tan, a Chinese mandarin, arrived from Havana yesterday, on the steamer City of Merida. A customs officer was sent for, but could not be found, so the Chinaman drove off in a carriage, with the Chinese consul. This morning he returned to the steamer. His papers were found to be correct, and he was allowed to land. Your reporter learned that he was destined to be secretary of the Chinese consul here. Two other Chinamen on board the steamer were detained until their passports could be examined by the proper authorities. They are en route to San Francisco. The Cuba Mail Company's policeman on the dock, whose special duty is to prevent Chinamen landing, and who is responsible for their whereabouts while the steamer is in port, told your reporter this morning that the Celestials tried in every way to get smuggled ashore, their certain object being to reach the Chinese colony in Mott street. A short time ago he said, he drove three Chinamen back on board the steamer while they were trying to sneak off. Going to the other end of the dock a few minutes afterwards he was just in time to see them disappearing up a side street. They left their baggage behind. Next day the customs officials got on their track and they were recaptured. The customs officer of the Alexandria line of steamers told your reporter that the duty of the deputy collector ended when the steamer left New York. The vessel then went to Brooklyn to discharge cargo, and if Chinamen got ashore there the custom house was not responsible. The public couldn't expect a collector to follow Mongolians to China to see if they arrived safely. He further said the San Francisco officials are duly notified every time a Chinaman passes through this city on the way to the Pacific coast.

Arrest of a Dynamiter at Key West.

KEY WEST, Fla., June 12.—Upon the arrival of the Mallory steamer late last night from New York, Frederick Gil Marrero was arrested, on a charge of having explosives in his possession, upon the affidavit of the United States district attorney. Since the quarantine season the Mallory steamers have not come to the wharf, but anchor in the quarantine ground, and the passengers and freight are brought ashore, but upon Marrero stepping into the boat he was arrested by the United States marshal, under a warrant from United States Commissioner Locke, and lodged in jail. Information was probably received from officials at New York. Marrero is a resident of Key West. He went to New York a few weeks ago, and his mission was evidently known through detectives. Upon searching his baggage the officers found fuse detonating caps, and books of instruction upon the manufacture of dynamite. The articles were submitted to an expert officer of the frigate Galena, and the conclusions arrived at were that Marrero had the materials and instructions for making dynamite, and such articles as could not be made here. The vigilance of the officials doubtless caused dynamiters to import separately the materials, and manufacture it here.

National Sunday School Convention.

LOUISVILLE, June 12.—At the national Sunday school convention, evening session, Dr. J. Wm. Flynn of Louisiana made an address on "The Bible the Word of God;" Rev. Alexander McEwen of Ontario, "The Bible, the Teachers' Text Book and Weapon;" Bishop Charles E. Cheney of Chicago "The Bible, the World's Light and Guide." Dr. E. H. Vincent of Connecticut was welcomed, and spoke of the proper arrangement of Sunday school lessons.

Destructive Flood in Pennsylvania.

PITTSBURG, June 12.—Points along the Allegheny valley were visited yesterday by one of the heaviest rainstorms known for many years, causing the most destructive flood since 1865. Bridges were washed away, many small buildings were demolished, and a number of families driven from their homes. The water is now subsiding and no further damage is anticipated.

The Army of the Potomac.

NEW YORK, June 12.—The meeting of the society of the army of the Potomac was held at a hotel at Coney Island to-night. Toasts and speakers were in order. The orator of the day was General Horace Porter. The poet of the day was Hon. John Savage. "Women of the war," General Charles Devens, Jr.

Wedding.

BOSTON, June 12.—At Concord to-night Miss Elizabeth Hoar, daughter of Hon. Edward Hoar, and Samuel Bowles of the Springfield Republican, were married. Among those present were ex-Secretary of State Evarts and Senator Hoar.

Bishop Simpson Very Ill.

PHILADELPHIA, June 12.—The illness of Bishop Simpson is critical. This morning a consultation of physicians was held at the bishop's residence. They report his condition better, but he is still very ill.

PACIFIC COAST.

Crops Greatly Damaged.

SAN FRANCISCO, June 12.—[Special.]—The heavy rains of the past few days have wrought all but disaster to the growing crops, just now approaching harvest. Thousands of tons of hay have been ruined, as it lay out in the fields, and the half-ripe wheat has been prostrated. The damage already is reckoned at millions of dollars, and as the barometer is still low, it is feared that the havoc has only begun.

Reports being received to-night show that the late rains have done enormous damage to the crops. At Hanford the rainfall to-day was one and a quarter inches. Hundreds of tons of hay lying in the fields will be a total loss, while thousands of acres of grain are laid flat on the ground. A dispatch from Salinas says: "The rains have been the heaviest ever experienced in the valley in the month of June. Thousands of tons of hay are lying in the fields, a soggy mass, rendered unfit for any purpose. All the heavy barley is down, most of it beyond recovery. Wheat is in the same state. The loss to farmers in this section from these rains will be not less than half a million dollars." News from Livermore is that all the hay, fully 5000 tons, may be put down as a total loss. The grain crop has been benefited.

Shipping Intelligence.

Arrived—Steamer Mexico, Huntington, sixty-five hours from Victoria, etc., passengers and merchandise to Goodall, Perkins & Co. Cleared—Steamer Oregon, Poleman, Astoria, O. R. and N. Co.; ship Challenger, Thompson, Nanaimo, John Rosenfeld; bark Arcturus, Gray, Port Townsend, George Fritch; schooner Dora Bluhm, Bluhm, Port Townsend, Charles H. Wells. Sailed—Ship Dashing Wave, Connor, Tacoma.

Another Attraction for New Market.

Manager Stechhan has engaged Mr. Frederick Ward, Miss Katie Forsyth and a full company, now playing at the California theater, for Portland. They will open July 7, and play one week. The company is composed entirely of new people from the east, and is really an excellent one.

A Correction.

[Special.]—A statement published here a few days ago, and which has doubtless reached Portland, to the effect that the Standard theater, owned by Stechhan & Cornelius, has changed hands, is not true. The theater was rented for a season of two weeks to a local manager, and the story grew out of this fact.

Personal.

[Special.]—R. M. Tabor of the government engineer's office in Portland who has spent the past six months in this city, will sail for home by to-morrow's steamer. His health has been greatly improved by rest and change of climate.

Death of Calhoun Benham.

Calhoun Benham, a prominent lawyer of this city, died to-day. In the famous duel between Judge David Terry and Senator Broderick, Benham acted as Terry's second.

FRESH PITH.

Several papers have remarked that the White house needs a mistress. They are evidently trying to boom Ben Butler.

"A man's sins always find him out," says an old proverb. It may be added that the creditors have about the same luck.

"My boy, where is your father to-night?" is the title of the last song. But the boy doesn't tell, probably because the old gentleman made it all right with him before he went out.

"Ferdinand Ward's father's greatest mistake was in not giving him a trade," observes a Boston paper. It is probable that the state will remedy this defect in his education.—Daily Graphic.

A poet in a contemporary sings: "A Little Thought has Come to Me." We advise that poet to grasp it and cling to it with determination, for it will probably be the only one that will ever come his way.

"What is a liberal education?" asks Prof. Eliot of Harvard in the June Century. The average student seems to think that it consists entirely in having a liberal father, and living next door to a boat house.—Burlington Free Press.

While sawing a log recently in a Mississippi mill, the workmen were astonished to see the log suddenly take fire and the machinery stop. Examining the saw they discovered that every tooth was gone, and on splitting the log a cannon ball was found buried in the heart.

A rabid cat at Omaha, Neb., attacked its owner Mrs. Lerenburg, and bit and scratched her badly upon her arms and hands. The animal began its attack without warning while the woman was about her work with her sleeves rolled up. The rest of the family, who were loafing outside the house, were not hurt. The moral is obvious.

"You remind me of Barnum since he secured his white elephant," said a Brooklyn man to his wife, who never tired of talking. "Because he holds so sacred a priceless and peerless beauty?" she timidly and blushingly suggested. "Not quite," replied the wretch; "it's because he owns a Toung Taulong." That heartless husband no longer carries a night-key.—New York Morning Journal.

He was an old man, and as he entered the room he remarked timidly to the editor: "Do you want something to print in your paper?" "Yes," replied the editor, "if it is worth publishing. What is it?" "Get your pencil out. I never rode on a railroad train, and I am going on 80 years of age." "All right," said the editor, jotting it down, "that's a good item." "I never saw a telephone." "Is it possible? Go on." "Nor a pretty girl." "Go ahead." "And I haven't washed my face and hands for twenty years." "All right; stand a little further off, and keep on." "I was in my teens when I drank my last glass of water." "So was the man who writes funny paragraphs for this paper," remarked the editor. "Proceed." "I never heard 'Pinafore,' I never saw an open back shirt, nor a game of base ball, nor a white elephant, nor a cigarette, nor any fine cut chewing tobacco, nor a dude, nor a wide awake newspaper, nor a pug dog, nor a pair of low cut shoes, nor a—" "Great Caesar, man!" interrupted the astonished editor, "where in the world have you lived all these seventy odd years?" And the old man responded sadly, "In St. Louis."—Drake's Magazine.

Speaking of the crop prospects, the Walla Walla Union says: All those farmers who were fortunate enough to get their grain into the ground last fall, report a fine crop prospect. Spring sown grain is reported as not being in very good condition. Rain would help both.

AT THE NATIONAL CAPITAL.

The House Passes the River and Harbor Appropriation Bill.

THE PRESIDENTIAL COUNT BILL TAKEN UP.

The Senate Passes the Consular and Diplomatic Appropriation Bill—Vest Submits a Severe Amendment—Notes.

A Dispatch from Key West.

WASHINGTON, June 12.—The government authorities to-day received a telegram from Special Agent Hubbs, at Key West, Florida, as follows: "Morreno, secretary of the revolutionary committee here, has arrived by marshal, with explosive material per steamer from New York. Examination is postponed until to-morrow. There are sealed letters in his baggage, unstamped, to prominent revolutionists."

Money Order Service Established.

WASHINGTON, June 12.—[Special.]—Money order service will be established in July next at the following named California postoffices: Alvarado, Berkeley and San Leandro, Alameda county and Galt, Sacramento county.

Foster Leaves for Spain.

WASHINGTON, June 12.—General Foster, minister to Spain, left this afternoon on his return to Madrid.

Gone to West Point.

WASHINGTON, June 12.—The president and the secretary of war have gone to West Point.

House.

WASHINGTON, June 12.—The house met in continuation of Wednesday's session, and went into committee of the whole, Cox of New York in the chair, on the river and harbor appropriation bill.

Graves offered an amendment providing that nothing contained in this act shall be construed as a limitation of the powers of the board of engineers, designated to prepare and submit plans, specifications, estimates and recommendations for the expenditure of appropriations for the Missouri river. Adopted.

On motion of O'Neill of Missouri an amendment was adopted, providing that hereafter all purchases of supplies and material shall be made by contract after advertisement.

The committee rose and the legislative day of Thursday opened.

The house resumed consideration of the river and harbor bill. The committee rose and reported the bill to the house.

Oates moved to strike out the Hennepin canal item. Carried, by a vote of 146 to 122.

The house passed the river and harbor bill—yeas 15[illegible], nays 104.

The presidential count bill was then taken up.

Eaton said he would briefly review the house bill, and then yield the floor to his colleagues on the committee.

Hiscock inquired whether the debate would continue to-morrow.

Eaton replied this was one of the most important measures which would come before congress, and he hoped it would be considered, but if there was anything of more importance which the house wished to discuss he supposed this bill would be laid aside and the house proceed to build a court house somewhere, but if there should be another strain like that of 1877 there might not be any necessity for court houses. Good order and peace demanded that the house should take action on this question. He then enumerated the methods proposed for counting the electoral votes, and said he had subscribed his name to the bill of the house committee, but in so doing had cast aside his own convictions of constitutional law. He believed that under the constitution the house of representatives to-day had the sole power to count the electoral votes. He made a short constitutional argument against the provisions of the senate bill, but was interrupted by Browne (Indiana) who raised similar objections against the house bill. Eaton said that he was not wedded to the house bill. He saw one way out of the difficulty; that was by a per capita vote. The gentlemen might say that was not right, because one party would always be in the majority in congress. He believed, however, in the integrity of mankind, and thought there were honest men in congress in both states whom he could trust.

Browne said the most dangerous tribunal in which to settle the great controversy of the presidential election was the congress of the United States. So help him God! he would rather try it before a justice of the peace and a country jury.

After some further desultory discussion, Pryor (Alabama) delivered a carefully prepared speech in favor of the house bill, addressing himself to the historical, legal and constitutional points involved. Before he concluded the house adjourned.

AN AMENDMENT BY SUMNER.

WASHINGTON, June 12.—[Special.]—Sumner of California this morning obtained consent to produce in the house and have referred to the committee on public lands the following resolution. He says he has received many letters on the subject from persons in California who desire that such a resolution be passed. Having consulted the committee, he states that they have agreed to report favorably before the end of this session, or incorporate the substance of the resolution in some other bill:

Resolved, That the secretary of the interior be and is hereby prohibited from taking any further steps to confirm, certify or patent any lands to any corporations which were a part or parcel of duly made and confirmed Mexican grants, or private Mexican grants, on the dates of the passage of the railroad acts of July 1, 1862, and July 2, 1864, and at the time of the withdrawal of the lands thereunder July 30, 1865, but which were, subsequent to the passage of said acts, and the withdrawal, excluded from final survey and patent of said grant; and it is hereby expressly declared that such lands shall not issue to the railroad companies mentioned in and subsidized under the railroad acts aforesaid.

Senate.

WASHINGTON, June 12.—On motion of Allison the senate took a final vote on the consular and diplomatic appropriation bill and the bill passed—36 ayes to 2 noes (Vance and Van Wyck). The bill as passed is almost precisely as reported from the senate committee on appropriations, making an addition of $8[illegible],000 to the bill, as reported from the house.

Sherman said, with his views of the demands made on the treasury, he would not, if pressed, vote to Ingalls' proposition. The declaration of a political platform would not change his views. He did not think the principle was right. A pension should commence when the application for it was filed. As for the proposition to put all survivors of the Union army on the pension rolls at this time, it would so weigh down our finances as to make it almost impossible to bear. He suggested that a committee of nine senators be appointed to consider the whole subject.

Harris, Cullom, Ingalls and Maxey opposed the suggestion, and, after further debate the senate, without reaching any conclusion on the bill, went into executive session, and when the doors were reopened, adjourned.

A SEVERE AMENDMENT.

WASHINGTON, June 12.—Senator Vest submitted to the senate to-day an amendment he proposes to the legislative appropriation bill, to provide that no money shall be paid out of the treasury or from any public fund for printing in the congressional record any speech not actually spoken or delivered in either the senate or the house.

A Theatrical Agent's Luck.

Paris Letter.

Two years ago, when Billy Deutsch won so much at baccarat, Garcia's name came up in the way of comparison only. Deutsch, who used to "manage" Billy Florence and wife, came to Paris and said he would quit gambling when he had won 1,000,000 francs. It was nothing for him to quit winner 20,000 or 30,000, 40,000, 60,000 francs each night. He lost sometimes, but not often; but one evening he dropped $100,000 inside of ten minutes. At that time he had 600,000 francs "to the good," and with this capital he had entered the imperial club, down yonder, by the Champs Elysees. A young viscount opened an unlimited bank at baccarat, and Billy bet 500,000 francs on the turn. The viscount dealt a card to the right, then one to the left, then one to himself, and another to the right, another to the left, and another to himself. "I give," said the viscount, as he glanced at his two. The player on the right hand had a ten and two-spot. "Give me a card," he said. The banker dealt him an eight spot. That made him nothing, for ten and two and eight added up are twenty, and it is the last figure which counts. The player on the left of the dealer was Deutsch; he had a faced card and a seven spot, and when the viscount declared that he would give, Deutsch said "no." His face card counted ten, which added to the seven spot made seventeen, and as I said just now, it is the last card which counts. The object of each player is to get nine, or near that as possible, for nine is the number which "sweeps the deck." Generally a player who has five will not call for a third card; one who calls for another when he has six would be suspected of wrong-doing; it is 210 against one that seven will win. The viscount had a faced card and a four spot. Inasmuch as Deutsch would not take another card, the viscount naturally supposed that that player had five or better, hence he was obliged to draw or lose outright. He dealt himself a four-spot, and with his eight beat Billy's seven; thus winning $100,000 from the latter. But Deutsch made this loss good later on. Inside of two months he had won 2,300,000 francs. He ran over to New York, had a good time with the boys, then came back to Paris, and in less than five weeks had lost every cent he had in the world. He has not yet turned trappist, and I don't suppose he ever will, for he happens to be a Hebrew.

Reminiscence of 1880 and [illegible]

Nominating speech of Wm. P. Frye at Chicago in 1880.

"I once saw a storm at sea in the night-time; an old ship battling for its life with the fury of the tempest; darkness everywhere; the winds raging and howling; the huge waves beating on the sides of the ship, and making her shiver from stem to stern. The lightning was flashing, the thunders rolling; there was danger everywhere. I saw at the helm a bold, courageous, immovable, commanding man. In the tempest, calm; in the commotion, quiet; in the danger, hopeful. I saw him take that old ship and bring her into her harbor, into still waters, into safety. That man was a hero. I saw the good old ship of state, the state of Maine, within the last year, fighting her way through the same waves, against the dangers. She was freighted with all that is precious in the principles of our republic; with the rights of American citizenship, with all that is guaranteed to the American citizen by our constitution. The eyes of the whole nation were on her, and intense anxiety filled every American heart lest the grand old ship, the State of Maine, might go down beneath the waves forever, carrying her precious freight with her. But there was a man at the helm, calm, deliberate, commanding, sagacious; he made even the foolish men wise; courageous, he inspired the timid with courage; hopeful, he gave heart to the dismayed, and he brought that good old ship safely into harbor, into safety; and she floats to-day greater, purer, stronger for her baptism of danger. That man, too, was heroic, and his name was James G. Blaine."

THE NEW REPORTER.

In what Respect his Methods Differ from the old Stager's.

New Orleans Figaro.

A new reporter is a queer being, and for a brief period he revels in bliss. The moment he secures a position on a daily paper he thinks that the eyes of the world are on him alone and all that he has to do is to reach up with one hand and yank himself upon the pedestal of fame. In the course of a few months however he realizes that he needs both hands, three or four ladders, and some one to give him a boost in order to get there. The first thing a new reporter does when he enters a newspaper office is to give vent to his opinions and point out to the old reporters how easy the paper can be improved. His surroundings are novel, and in consequence he works like a Trojan. If a corner grocery burns down he pictures a scene in two columns which harrows the souls of men and makes the city editor want to kill him in cold blood. He will speak of the lurid sky and the roaring flames licking the angry tongues and all that kind of stuff, and when he sees next morning how the city editor cut the whole article down to ten or fifteen lines, he feels sure that the entire staff are jealous of his thrilling style of writing and wish to crush him. The city editor sends him to report a meeting, but the people there will not admit him, and the bare idea that they refused to allow him to be present at the meeting is an insult which burrows its way down to the roots of his fluttering soul, and he returns to the office towering with rage. He flashes his eyes and pounds the air with both fists like an untamed cavalier, and roars for revenge. He must have it. The press must not be throttled. It cannot be as long as he has strength to wield a pen so he sits down with the hair on his head bulged out like the tail of an angry cat and commences his fierce attack. He writes up the Barrelmakers' Union as a mere wart upon the body politic. He sends everything connected with barrels and their makers. He upholds the social system, pitches into the law, tears up the constitution, flaps his coat-tails in the face of the president, wipes his boots on the capital and points with pride and satisfaction to Benjamin Franklin and the flag. No, the press, the great guardian of the liberties of the people, cannot and will not be suppressed. When pale with indignation, and reeking with perspiration, he presents his article to the city editor, that worthy functionary sees fifteen libel suits in it, and he merely swears around the office until the lights go out, and they have to put more water in the gas-meter.

An old reporter, however, never dreams of acting in such a way. If he is detailed to report the meeting of the Barrel Makers' union, and they refuse to let him in, he thanks the barrel makers from the bottom of his heart. The refusal lets him out of that much work, so he loafs the evening away at the theater, and looks at the pretty girls in the dress circle, and wonders if there will ever be one for him. The dear, sweet, delightful things.

We recollect when Bilkins first went to work on the Post that he had a craving to plunge right into the middle of literature and make a fortune in two weeks. One day he carried a poem to the city editor, who was an old journalist with a bald head, three children, a skinny wife and a disposition so sour that it would shrivel a crab apple. The city editor read the poem about a little child gathering flowers by a babbling brook, and then turned to Bilkins and said: "I see that you must have mental recreation. You have not been connected more than a week with the paper, but the strain on you has been so great that it has dazed your mind. You need rest. Go up in the country and shoot jaybirds for a week and you will feel better." Bilkins resigned his position on the paper the next day, and is now in the lard business.

The Plumed Knights.

Chicago Tribune.

People have not forgotten the wonderful torch-light, wide awake organizations that sprang up all over the north in 1860 to march, sing and cheer for Old Abe. The enlistments swept into the ranks all the able-bodied young men of republican proclivities north of Mason and Dixon's line. The organizations proved a most potent factor in that memorable campaign, not only in making votes for the republican cause, but in getting them into the ballot boxes and seeing them honestly converted. The wide-awakes on election day converted themselves into ballot box guards, and performed most valuable service. Fully a thousand of the gray-bearded and bald-headed men attending this convention were members of the wide-awake marching companies of twenty-four years ago. When the southern democratic rebellion broke out the next spring, after that election, the wide-awakes, almost to a man, became volunteers to put it down, shouldered their muskets, and marched into Dixie to their old campaign tunes and songs. As members of these Wide-Awake companies they had learned to march and keep step and most of the elementary company and battalion formations laid down in "Scott's Tactics." The torch light processions of this campaign will undoubtedly be called the "Plumed Knights," and the head-piece of the regalia will be a light helmet with a white plume. We look for a jolly time and a lively campaign for the young men.

Double Treason.

In 1864 a society calling itself "The Polish Military Society," composed of thirty members, organized itself at Paris. The thirty members were men of influence. The object of the society was to promote the restoration of the kingdom of Poland, and first, to study the organization of the European armies secured, to establish relations between officers of Polish nationality in the service of Austria, Germany and Russia; and, third, to take active participation in all important European events. Two years later the society went to work in active earnestness by co-operating with the Garibaldian volunteers in Italy in 1866; with the republicans of France under Wolowski in 1870-71, and in the Turkish service in 1877-78. Kraszewski, the Polish poet, was one of the heroes in those days. He was a chosen agent of the French president to gather information concerning the German, Russian and Italian armies. His success was such that Ferry tendered him a decoration; and at the same time he was in the employ of Bismarck. He was trusted by Gambetta and Ferry and Bismarck as though they were all of a harmonious family, and he their trusted and confidential servitor. The Paris courts have brought him up with a twist. The Germans wanted him, but France was ahead in this matter. Russia looked on with unconcern. Kraszewski's arrest at Paris was a matter of congratulation at Berlin and at St. Petersburg, and the inevitable fate of the spy, however distinguished, was looked upon by entire Europe with the serenest complacency. Even his literary brilliancy could not save him.

Oscar.

Vanity Fair draws the following pen picture of the apostle of estheticism, who, it seems, has changed much since his return from America: "Oscar, the youngest son of the late Sir William Wilde, archaeologist, traveler and queen's surgeon in Ireland, won the Berkeley medal for Greek in Trinity college, Dublin, and a scholarship. Migrating to Magdalen college, Oxford, he took two 'firsts' and the 'Newdigate.' Then he went wandering in Greece, and, full of a Neo-Hellenic spirit, came back to invade society, London. He invented the esthetic movement. He preached the doctrine of possible culture in external things. He got brilliantly laughed at and good-naturedly accepted. In 1881 he published a somewhat startling volume of poems, and at once went to America to preach his gospel of culture. Then, as an itinerant art apostle, he wandered from New York to San Francisco, lectured to all sorts and conditions of men, produced a play and came back to London. Suddenly he gave up dado worship for dandyism, cut his long locks and accepted life. He is a sayer of smart things, and has a rare flow of thoroughly Irish wit and an excellent notion of the advantage that may accrue to any man from drawing attention to himself anyhow. He has lived through much laughter, in which he has always joined. He has many disciples, and is of opinion that 'imitation is the sincerest form of insult.' He is 28 years old, comes of a literary family, and is essentially modern."

A New Enterprise.

Journal of Commerce N. Y.

Oregon has a harbor for deep sea commerce below the Columbia river bar, and steamship connection has already been established between Yaquina bay and San Francisco.

The following dispatch from Captain Morton of the steamship Yaquina, was received at the office of the Oregon Pacific Railroad Company Monday morning:

YAQUINA, Or., May 31, via Corvallis, Or., June 1, 1884.

Colonel T. E. Hogg, President Oregon Pacific Railroad Company, 45 William Street, N. Y.—Crossed the bar at 3:30 P. M. with the steamship Yaquina. Entered under my command at half ebb tide with a full cargo. At 4:10 P. M. ship secured to the Oregon Pacific Railroad wharf (four and a half miles from the bar.) No difficulty in carrying in sixteen feet.

THOS. H. MORTON.

The company, which has been quietly constructing a railroad connecting Yaquina bay with the great Willamette valley, the present center of production and population of Oregon, and has demonstrated the availability of a new safe harbor for deep sea commerce between San Francisco and Puget sound, deserves the congratulations of the press and the commercial world.

NEWS OF THE NORTHWEST.

Western Oregon.

Cut worms are said to be doing much damage in some portions of Yamhill county, among late sown crops.

The following call to old veterans will be interesting: "We the undersigned Indian war veterans, request all men who have been engaged in any of the Indian wars of the Pacific states and territories, to meet with us to form an organization of Indian war veterans, at Firemen's hall, at McMinnville, Oregon, June 21, 1884." This call is signed by John Carlin, W. J. Rogers, R. L. Simpson and E. H. Claypool.

The great army reunion and military tournament to be held at McMinnville on the 15th, 16th and 17th of July next, promises to be one of the grandest events in the history of Yamhill. It is on the same plan as that held at Portland last year. Posts from all parts of the state will be in attendance, several pieces of artillery will be brought up, and the governor and staff will be present. Several companies of infantry and cavalry will be organized and fully equipped for the occasion in various parts of the county and state.

A little daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Draper of McMinnville fell Monday evening last, and in falling struck her head on some sharp instrument, inflicting an ugly wound which penetrated to the scalp.

The population of Dayton is 1743.

Dayton exchange: Snake river is 21 feet 7 inches above low water mark. Highest it has been this year.

Dayton Chronicle: The refreshing showers have brightened the features of the fields and lightened up the countenances of the farmers.

While Dick Learn and a German priest were driving along the road near Dayton Tuesday morning the neck yoke strap broke, causing their buggy to tip over and throw the occupants to the ground, bruising Mr. Learn considerably. They were attempting to get from the upper to the lower grade at the time the accident occurred.

Mr. John Willard, a well-known citizen of Garfield county, died at the residence of Wm. Sweeney on the Tucannon, on the 8th inst., aged 51 years. Mr. Willard had no living relations in this country. He made a will bequeathing $500 to Murray Willard to take care of his old sheep dog, $500 to an unknown party, and the balance of his property, amounting to $35,000, to be used in building a school and hospital in Pomeroy.

The Trail of the Sea Serpent.

J. G. Wood in the June Atlantic.

We might naturally expect to look for sea monsters in the tropics, but here we find that the creature which is called the sea serpent has invariably been seen in northern latitudes, and always in the summer or autumn. Its rate is tolerably uniform—wonderfully so, indeed, considering the great difficulty of estimating the length of any animal in the sea. The color is invariably the same; those who saw only the upper surface taking it to be black or blackish brown, and those who saw the under surface describing it as white. Those who saw the eyes describe them as prominent, and on the upper part of the head. The duration of each appearance above the water is the same throughout. The speed is given as the same, that is, five or six knots per hour, and every one seems to have noticed the foam or spray thrown up before it, and the wake left behind it. Had the narrator wished to extol the dangers which they had run in encountering so dreadful a monster, they would have reported it as fierce and irritable. But, on the contrary, all agree in stating that it is a perfectly harmless creature, and that even when it appeared to be attacking a boat, it turned off short and changed its course. Imposters would have armed its mouth with frightful teeth, whereas not only teeth are not mentioned, but the Princess was so close to the animal that the passengers looked into its open mouth, and could ascertain that no teeth were visible. All agree in the character of the undulating movement, i. e., that it is vertical, and not lateral. The only discrepancy is that between the accounts of Mr. Lawrence and Mr. Watson. But the former saw nothing but the head and shoulders, whereas the latter saw nothing but the back. Both narrators agree in the color and the speed, both carefully refraining from the slightest mention of any detail which they did not see.

Next comes the question, What can this thing be? It is quite certain that it does not correspond with any contemporary animal at present known to zoologists. Mr. Arthur Lawrence offers a suggestion that it may possibly be a surviving Plesiosaurian—an idea, by the way, which was ingeniously used by the late Lord Lytton in his "Coming Race." The distance, however, between the great saurians which are now only known by their fossil remains and those of the present day, is too wide to be bridged by a survivor.

But though not a surviving saurian, it may be a survivor of some group of animals which is on the verge of extinction. In the first place it cannot be a serpent, as the peculiar movements which have been described cannot be performed by a serpent, the structure of the vertebræ prohibiting them.

There are plenty of sea serpents, none of them measuring more than a few feet in length, and all have the tail flattened sideways, so that they undulate through the water just as an eel does. The monster in question, however, undulates up and down, like a caterpillar. Now, the only marine animals which possess this power are those belonging to the whale. These, as may be seen from the structure of their vertebræ, can undulate up and down but not sideways, the projections on either side of each vertebra interlocking with the vertebra immediately behind it. Now, suppose that there might be a much elongated cetacean, being to the rest of the whales what the eels are to the fishes, the creature would behave exactly as our sea-serpent behaved. Every movement of the creature is cetacean. The habit of pushing the head out of the water is distinctly cetacean, the sperm whales being much addicted to this custom. The caterpillar-like bend of the body is also cetacean, and may be witnessed any day when a school of porpoises curve their graceful course over the waves. The sudden rising of the body, as described by Mr. Watson, is also a cetacean characteristic. The whales, when their lungs are inflated, are a little lighter than water. But they possess the power of contracting their whole bodies, so that they can sink like stones—a property which is extremely exasperating to the whale-fishers. When they relax the muscular apparatus by which this object is effected, the body resumes its former size, becomes lighter than water, and surges to the surface, exactly as described by Mr. Wasson.

The unexpected harmlessness of so powerful a creature is another characteristic, which, fortunately for man, belongs to the whales—creatures which never attack, but under exceptional circumstances. There are many whales now known to science, some of them being much more slender than others. It is certain, moreover, that there are many which are as yet unknown.

The Lady did the Kissing.

New York World.

Pauline Gannon, a pretty brunette, yesterday summoned before Justice Welde, at Essex market, Mayer Gensler, a well dressed young man, whose conduct, she said, caused her considerable annoyance. "I'm a waiter girl in the ice-cream saloon at No. 86 Hester street," she testified, "and he is employed in the same place as a driver. Whenever he sees me he catches me in his arms and kisses me. I didn't like it, and I've told him so repeatedly, but he won't stop. I'm afraid if my husband catches him he'll kill him, and probably me. I've been married a year, but my husband doesn't care much for me."

"Pauline, didn't you allow me to kiss you last night?" questioned the young man.

"No, I didn't. You stole the kiss from me."

"I'm the injured party in this matter, judge," remarked the defendant. "It is I who should have made this complaint. She is the one who does all the mashing. When I go to work in the morning and when I return in the evening she gathers me in her arms and kisses me. I was afraid of getting killed by her husband if he should happen to see us, and I told him of her conduct. He said: 'If she kisses you, kiss her until she gets tired of it.' I followed his advice. She's had me arrested because her husband is thinking of applying for a divorce."

A number of witnesses were waiting to be heard in behalf of the defendant, but Justice Welde only listened to one, who fully corroborated Gensler and the magistrate discharged him.

Grant's Missouri Farm.

St. Louis Spectator.

One of the possessions of the Grant family which will now probably go to pay their debts, is the old Dent farm near St. Louis. It is about ten miles from the city, perhaps fifteen, on the Carondelet branch of the Missouri Pacific railroad. It was left to Mrs. Grant by her father, and is now held probably in her individual name. It was there where Mrs. Grant was raised, and it was from there that General Grant used to haul wood to St. Louis. The place now looks well worn and somewhat dilapidated, though it has an immense barn, built some years ago, when General Grant purchased a number of fine horses and left them there. It was his intention at one time to turn the old Dent homestead into an extensive stock farm, but he soon got tired of the experiment and had a sale whereat he let go all his fine horses. I was there last spring, and the once splendid farm was only a reminder of what it had been. The old family residence where General and Mrs. Grant had lived for a number of years was almost ready to tumble down from age and neglect, and all that was left to remind one of General Grant's short-lived venture in stock raising were the magnificent but empty barn, and a gaunt, broken down mule that munched the grass, lonely enough in a slovenly looking pasture. Mrs. Grant has always retained a warm affection for her family homestead, and when she and the general were in St. Louis the last time they hired Jesse Arnot's best pair of horses and drove out to spend the day there.

Chicken-Loving Methodists.

Philadelphia Times.

Since the earliest days of the itinerancy the good brethren of the Methodist ministry have had a weakness for chickens. In the good old times it was customary to have a particularly fine fat pullet specially reserved until the minister came round. Philadelphia, as is well known, is the greatest chicken market in the east, the New York hotels sending nearly all their orders here, and the fame of "Philadelphia dry-picked chickens" has gone wide and far. It is said that when the place for holding the general conference was under consideration and the claims of Philadelphia were under discussion, some one said: "Why, that's where they have the good chickens, isn't it?" and thereupon Philadelphia received the preference by an overwhelming majority. It appears that the confidence of the clergy in Quaker poultry has not been misplaced. During the session of the general conference the headquarters of the delegates has been the Colonnade hotel, and since conference opened chicken has been on the bill of fare for every meal. There were over four hundred ministers fed daily in the hotel, and the consumption has necessarily been great. "Las' week," said the hotel steward yesterday, "we used up mo' dan two thousand chicken, 'sides one thousand ob 'em spring chicks. No use talkin', one o' dem dere big Methodist gem'men make way wid a whole chicken in so quick it makes yo' head swim."

Connecticut lawyers are credited with the expression of the opinion that the state tramp law is not a success, as the tramp has only to swear that he is looking for work, or trying to work his way to his home, to escape conviction by a jury.

CUTICURA REMEDIES THE GREAT SKIN CURES

Blood Purifiers and Skin Beautifiers.

A Positive Cure for Every Form of Skin and Blood Diseases, from Pimples to Scrofula.

DISFIGURING HUMORS, Itching and Burning Tortures, Painful Eruptions, Salt Rheum or Eczema, Psoriasis, Scald Head, Infantile or Birth Humors, and every form of Itching, Scaly, Pimply, Scrofulous, Inherited, Contagious, and Copper-Colored Diseases of the Blood, Skin and Scalp, with Loss of Hair, are positively cured by the CUTICURA REMEDIES.

Cuticura Resolvent, the new Blood Purifier, cleanses the blood and perspiration of impurities and poisonous elements, and thus removes the cause, while Cuticura, the great Skin Cure, instantly allays Itching and Inflammation, clears the Skin and Scalp, heals Ulcers and Sores and restores the Hair.

Cuticura Soap, an exquisite Skin Beautifier and Toilet Requisite, prepared from CUTICURA, is indispensable in treating Skin Diseases, Baby Humors, Skin Blemishes, Rough, Chapped or Oily Skin. Cuticura Remedies are absolutely pure, and the only real Blood Purifiers and Skin Beautifiers.

Chas. Houghton, Esq., lawyer, 28 State street, Boston, reports a case of salt Rheum under his observation for ten years, which covered the patient's body and limbs, and to which all known methods of treatment had been applied without benefit, which was completely cured solely by the CUTICURA REMEDIES, leaving a clean and healthy skin.

F. H. Drake, Esq., Detroit, Mich., suffered untold tortures from a Skin Disease, which appeared on his hands, head and face, and nearly destroyed his eyes. After the most careful doctoring and a consultation of physicians failed to relieve him, he used the CUTICURA REMEDIES and was cured, and has remained so to date.

Chas. Eayre Hinkle, Jersey City Heights, N. J., a lad of 12 years, who, for eight years, was one mass of Scabs and Humors, and upon whom all known remedies and cures were tried in vain, was completely cured by CUTICURA REMEDIES.

Durham is historic. It was neutral ground during the armistice between Sherman and Johnson. Soldiers of both armies filled their pouches with the tobacco stored there, and, after the surrender, marched homeward. Soon orders came from East, West, North and South, for "more of that elegant tobacco." Then, ten men ran an unknown factory. Now it employs 800 men, uses the pink and pick of the Golden Belt, and the Durham Bull is the trade-mark of this, the best tobacco in the world. Blackwell's Bull Durham Smoking Tobacco has the largest sale of any smoking tobacco in the world. Why? Simply because it is the best. All dealers have it. Trade-mark of the Bull.

LOOK OUT! DURHAM BULL

If he'd gone for a package of Blackwell's Bull Durham Smoking Tobacco, as he was told, he wouldn't have been cornered by the bull.

LOGAN AS HE IS.

Probably no other man living so much in the public gaze has ever been so misrepresented and so misunderstood by those who have never known him personally, as John A. Logan. Everybody admits that he was a great soldier and that he has a clean record, yet not a few who have read the flings from unfriendly papers, to-day think of Logan as a rough, illiterate, swashbuckler sort of a fellow, who "kills the king's English," and does other vague and undefinable things that other great men never do. They talk about "Black Jack," and make an impression upon the reader or listener that he is the "Texas Jack" or "Buffalo Bill" of Congress. There are some, doubtless, who think he spends his spare time in riding mustangs and shooting half dollars off the top of a whisky bottle. The story of his "part Indian blood" has started on its rounds again, and the funny men on democratic papers are beginning to work over their old jokes about Logan and the grammar.

Those who know the senator know another and a very different man from that pictured by the fellows who talk familiarly of "Black Jack." As to his ancestry, it is well enough known in Illinois that his father was a highly educated Irish physician, and his mother a member of the Tennessee Perkins family, whose brother was at one time secretary of the state of Illinois. The subject of all this misrepresentation has troubled himself very little about it, and somehow the wrong impression has a hold that is curious. General Logan was a soldier who went in to win. He had no use for those who believed in "softly" fighting, and when, at the terrible battle of Peachtree Creek, he rode down the lines after Gen. McPherson had been killed rallying the forces, with the cry of "McPherson and revenge!" he probably made a picture that has lingered in the minds of the soldiers who rallied and carried the day. He was at the front and in dead earnest, but he went from the halls of congress to the war, and from a busy law practice to congress. He never drank blood nor seasoned his beef with gunpowder. He had never even been through the West Point soldier's education, though he was counted the most thorough of all the officers who came from civil life. These war stories always put a man in the light of tearing recklessness, no matter what his real character may be; and doubtless the valor of Logan, so well known, has helped to stamp with plausibility some idle tales of his roughness in the minds of those dime novel readers whose heroes are always rough. He was like the knights of St. John in the holy wars: "In the forefront of every battle was seen his burnished mail, and in the gloomy rear of every retreat was heard his voice of constancy and of courage." With all these he is a perfect gentleman. Not so serene and so given to idly-phrased smoothness of conversation, perhaps, as some of his fellow senators; but gentle, considerate, with low tones and an air of refinement. He is one of the few senators who does not drink alcoholic liquors, and one who may always be found in the room of the committee on military affairs whenever there is committee work to be done there. Oftentimes when attending to his private correspondence he is at his desk there, for it is "Logan's room" essentially.

In matters of legislation, as well as in war, General Logan is so intensely in earnest as to mislead some who believe eternal hatred goes with forceful support or opposition. Here, too, he is among the bravest in assault, and one to never lose hope in defeat. If outvoted in some cherished measure, he is a statesman who keeps certain grand purposes in view, and he resolutely seeks their accomplishment through such other ways as may be open. In this respect he is as senator Oliver P. Morton of Indiana used to be. In fact, while there are strong points of difference there are also some remarkable points of resemblance between Logan and Morton. One is this holding to a purpose and going straight for its accomplishment, sooner or later. Each made the same error in regard to the finances of the country just after the close of the war, and each reasoned out a correction of the error for himself.

These characteristics are not noted at this time with the purpose of telling anything new. But so much misrepresenting has been done that many, even among those who admire the man at a distance, have an impression of his character that embraces but half the truth, while his enemies paint the whole man and his life the color of his hair.

"A COMMON SCOLD."

The gentlemen who are reported as saying that the New York Times has come to be "a common scold," and that no one pays any attention to it, contradict themselves by making a remark so "withering," for it shows that they themselves have paid attention to it, and are unpleasantly affected by its course. It may be regretted that the Times can not support Mr. Blaine, and on the other hand it may be regretted that the republican convention did not nominate a candidate that the Times could support. But the Times is not "a common scold" in the usual acceptation of that term. It has been very emphatic in the expression of its views on several memorable occasions, and the persons whom it assailed were not pleased with it. At the draft riot in New York city in 1863, while the Tribune was advising the government to surrender if "Lee watered his horses in the Delaware river," and both directly and indirectly encouraged the rioters, the Times, under cover of guns posted in its editorial rooms, poured the hottest fire into the mob, urging Governor Seymour to execute the laws and restore order to the city by the most vigorous methods. A few years later when the Tweed ring had become so intrenched in the offices of the city that the boss could defiantly ask what the citizens were going to do about it, the Times exposed the iniquities and created a public sentiment which made it possible to convict the members of the ring and impeach the judges who had conspired with them to plunder the city. The Times did more than any other newspaper to expose the star route thieves and inflict upon them the only punishment they have received. The Times refused to support Judge Folger for governor two years ago because his nomination was forced upon the convention by means of forged proxies and other methods which, if not rebuked, would soon destroy popular government. We refer to these things not to approve of the present attitude of the Times, but to show the immense service it has rendered the country by its bold and vigorous course, and that its past record does not justify the charge that it is a "common scold." The men who make that charge should be careful lest they expose their own affiliations with some corrupt scheme which deserved scolding.

"Not here, in this brilliant circle"—said Garfield four years ago, in his matchless speech nominating Sherman—"is the destiny of the republic to be decreed for the next four years," but in the homes of the people, by 4,000,000 republican firesides, "where the thoughtful voters with wives and children about them, with the calm thoughts inspired by love of home and country, with the history of the past, the hopes of the future, and reverence for the great men who have adorned and blessed our nation in days gone by burning in their hearts, there God prepares the verdict which will determine the wisdom of our work."

The Germans are not captivated by the vigorous foreign policy of Mr. Blaine. They say they left Germany because the foreign policy of that country was too vigorous for them, and came here under the idea that the citizens of this country were not to be disturbed by foreign broils or commotions, or taken away from their homes and business for the Monroe doctrine, the balance of power below the equator, or anything of the sort.

TILDEN AND HIS PARTY.

It is doubtless true that Mr. Tilden's letter of declination has been written, or at least contemplated, for several months, and that it has been withheld from the public for important reasons. One reason, perhaps the most important one, has been to keep the question free from complications as long as possible, to prevent other candidates from securing an undesired prominence until things could settle themselves in the interest of harmonious party action. The Tilden boom has killed off several candidates and cleared the field for the coming man. There has never been any probability that he would be the candidate. His health is a sufficient obstacle. He could not conduct the campaign nor discharge the duties of the presidential office. There might have been some force in the issue of the disputed election four years ago, but the party then refused to adopt it, and it is now a "barren ideality." The question was settled forever at the time, and having refused to reopen it in 1880, it would have been simply disgusting to reopen it now. The revival of the old charges against the electoral commission would have been met by the familiar charges against the occupants of "cipher alley," and there would have been a wearisome iteration of unpleasant reminiscences on both sides which would have influenced no votes and left the judgment of the country undisturbed. If Mr. Tilden had been the candidate he would have had no aid from the cry of fraud, but would have depended upon his personal strength with the people. As he frankly admits, his physical strength would not enable him to meet the expectation of his supporters, and therefore it would be the height of folly to enter upon the campaign.

From a mere partisan point of view the republicans might have been pleased to have the democratic party take up an abandoned issue in place of some living principle, but the class of voters that both parties need to secure would have deplored it, because such a campaign would have been a discredit to the country. When we talk about a strong candidate we mean one who would receive, in addition to the regular vote of his party, the support of the independent element. There is nothing in Mr. Tilden at the present time to incite that support. He is strong only with reliable democrats. As he could afford no assurance of his ability to accomplish the objects which the independents desire, there would be no inducement for them to vote for him. To have made him their candidate would have shown a degree of imbecility in the democratic party to deal with living questions equal to the physical debility of their candidate. All this Mr. Tilden sees and virtually acknowledges in his letter of declination.

But Mr. Tilden could not safely rely upon the unanimous support of the regulars. It is but four years since Tammany formally arraigned him of "a recourse to a system of bribery and corruption happily without other example in our history," and declared that "to support such a man again would render those supporting him accessories after the fact to a crime so mean that it concealed itself in ciphers, and so enormous that the corruption of Verres, the venality of Robert Walpole, and the vulgar rascality of the ring depredators of New York pale into insignificance in comparison with it." The "old ticket" would have turned many democrats away in disgust and humiliation at the display it would have made to the country of the poverty of the party in men as well as principles. The result of Mr. Tilden's declination will soon be apparent. The New York State convention will meet at Saratoga next Wednesday, but sentiment will probably crystallize in favor of some candidate before that time. There is a strong feeling among the people in favor of the nomination of Gov. Cleveland, and if the New York democrats are sensible they will choose delegates for him. There is a large independent element upon whom Gov. Cleveland has gained a very strong hold, by reason of his upright, straightforward and vigorous administration of state affairs, always in the line of reform by deeds and not by words alone, and in other states the same class of voters would be glad to see him nominated. The Boston Herald says that he could carry Massachusetts against Blaine. But he is not favored, it is said, by Mr. Tilden, who thinks he would be successfully opposed by John Kelley. Gov. Cleveland has displeased Kelley and other politicians by devoting himself directly to the interests of the people, and they have been seeking revenge by booming Flower and claiming that Tilden is for him. But the united delegation from New York city does not encourage the hope that the democrats will waste their strength in factious quarrels this year.

PRODUCERS AND PAUPERS.

There are carloads of emigrants coming over the Northern Pacific railroad every day to points all along between eastern Dakota and the Pacific ocean. Men, women and children, tired of travel but full of the hope that they are leaving the worse for the better, are coming in a steady stream; and, to see them, one cannot help wondering if they all know just what they are going to do, and, what is more important, if the heads of these families have money enough to see them through the unproductive experience of getting established. We hear of no trouble on account of these incoming people, and of course they are more than welcome. They are not paupers.

But there is a class of immigrants from which this section and the whole country ought to be free. The Anchor line steamer Furnessia brought to New York last week 1200 immigrants, over one-half of whom were assisted from Ireland by the British government. The Furnessia went out of her course to secure these assisted people, having put into Valentia Bay, Ireland, after leaving Glasgow and calling at Moville. The authorities at Castle Garden were prepared for the steamer's arrival, having been informed of the passengers she had on board. An extra force of clerks was pressed into service, and the head of each assisted family was questioned relative to his prospects here and his ability to support himself and family. The "assisted" were all in families, and having been supplied with checks by the government payable on Henderson Brothers, agents of the Furnessia, for sums ranging from £2 to £10 according to the size of the family, all were enabled to speak correctly of their immediate ability to support themselves. Some were not sure what the future would bring forth, but all have relatives here whom they say can and will support them.

Of course they could not be sent back if they could make a plausible showing of future support. Most of them depended upon relatives. Some of them knew where these were and some did not; some of them came from the work house; some were very old; some had been ejected from their homes for suspected complicity with dynamite plots, and some gave no evidence of incapacity except in the suspicious fact that the government had given them money to get rid of them. It seems like dodging the law under which paupers can be sent back, and probably the hopeful plans of future support are fixed up before these people start. One of the number, "Batt" Sullivan, as he styled himself, 60 years old, is the happy possessor of twins born on the steamer a few days after leaving Valentia bay. Besides twins he has eight other children. He has £40, with which to support his family until he reaches Idaho, where his brother, who he says is a well-to-do farmer, resides. "Batt" has tickets to his brother's farm. When we think of the chances that the brother is not rich enough to take care of such a helpless crowd, it seems very much like an imposition for the home country to bundle these people off out of their own way, not caring who else or what other country they are saddled upon. What we want is healthy, self-supporting, producing, settlers; such men as crossed the ocean in the first years of the country's history and made the country what it is. We are in danger at this rate of getting paupers faster than we can build poor houses.

The phrase "dark horse," says the Tribune, in the sense in which it is commonly used in this country, was first used by Thackeray in his "Adventures of Philip." Said Philip, referring to some talk about a candidate for parliament: "Well, bless my soul, he can't mean me. Who is the dark horse he has in his stable?" But in the sense of secret the word is common in Shakespeare. "The duke would yet have dark deeds darkly answered. He would never bring them to light."

Some people wonder why the opinions of the leading eastern dailies on the Chicago nominations were not published in our dispatches. The following order sent along the line to agents furnishes the reason:

CHICAGO, June 6.

To Agents of the Associated Press at all report points: Objection having been made heretofore to sending editorial comments in report, you will refrain from sending any such comments to-night.
(Signed) WM. HENRY SMITH.

Misfortunes never come singly. U. S. Grant, Jr., had a verdict for $5000 rendered against him a few days ago by a White Plains, New York, jury, in favor of a farmer, who was injured in person and property by a vicious horse belonging to Grant. But Grant will probably beat the farmer on the execution.

While the republican convention declares for forfeiture of unearned land grants, the republican senate carefully leaves the bills for the purpose tucked away in the pigeon holes of the committee room. Platforms are not forfeitures.

REPUBLICAN CITY CONVENTION.

Nominations for Councilmen: Wm. Nicklaus in the Third Ward, C. M. Forbes in the Second; no Nomination in the First; D. C. McKercher for Treasurer.

The republican city convention met at two o'clock yesterday afternoon in the county court room at the court house. Hon. H. W. Corbett was chosen temporary chairman. He said the convention needed to select good men for councilmen and counseled harmony on this point. C. P. Hogue was chosen temporary secretary.

W H Adams W H Andrus and John McCraken were appointed a committee on credentials.

J Bourne Jr, W H Harris and Chas E Ladd were appointed a committee on permanent organization and order of business.

Recess of fifteen minutes taken.

The committee on credentials submitted the following report of delegates entitled to seats in the convention which was adopted:

First ward—C O Phillips by R. L. Durham proxy, J C Carson, Abe Tichner W T Everson John O Lewis, P Shulderman by A Tichner, proxy W W Spaulding W E. Holmes, John McCraken.

Second ward—W H Andrus, H B Hubbard by W S Chapman, proxy, D P Thompson, Walter Niles by W S Chapman, proxy, H W Corbett W O Allen, H L Hoyt by George Hoyt, proxy D W Crandall.

Third ward—George Langford by J Bourne Jr proxy J Bourne, Jr, W H Adams, Cooper Smith C P Hogue Charles E Ladd, Richard Williams by Van B De Lashmutt, proxy W. H. Harris, M S Fishburn E Morgan.

The committee on permanent organization and order of business reported as follows:

1 That the temporary officers be made the permanent officers.

2 Recess of fifteen minutes to enable ward delegations to select candidates for councilmen.

3 Nomination of a candidate for city treasurer.

4 Appointment by the chair of a city central committee one from each ward to serve for the ensuing year.

The report was adopted and a recess taken.

WARD CONVENTIONS

The First ward delegates remained in the convention room and after some informal discussion agreed to defer making a nomination until Saturday evening at 8 o'clock. They will report their action in the Sunday morning papers.

The Second ward delegation adjourned to the treasurer's office and chose Hon D P Thompson as chairman. S Farrell and C M Forbes were placed in nomination. Forbes received 6 and Farrell 2 votes.

The third ward delegation met in the witness room. W H Adams was chosen chairman. Chas E Ladd Wm Nicklaus and J Frank Watson were placed in nomination. There were five ballots as follows:

	1st	2d	3d	4th	5th
Ladd	4	4	4	4	3
Nicklaus	4	5	5	6	6
Watson	2	1	1
Blank				1	1

Watson's name was withdrawn after the third ballot.

NOMINATIONS RATIFIED

After recess the action of the ward delegations were reported to the convention and endorsed.

For treasurer W H Harris presented D C McKercher the present incumbent. V B DeLashmutt presented H W Monastes. The ballot resulted: McKercher 14, Monastes 13. The nomination was made unanimous.

The chair then appointed the following central committee for the ensuing year: First ward, W H Adams; Second ward W H Andrus; Third ward W W Spaulding.

Adjourned sine die.

DEMOCRATIC PRIMARY ELECTION.

Yesterday being the day appointed for electing delegates to the democratic city convention polling places were opened in the First and Third wards but in the Second ward for some reason best known to the leaders of the unterrified, no ticket was in the field.

In the First ward there was a great crowd and considerable excitement. There were two tickets in the field, one being in favor of J J Holland, the other for M Burlebach and cheap whisky. The foxy muzzle of Ben Norden was seen at the window where tickets were deposited as is usual at all elections in Couch.

The voters formed in a line which extended from the polling booth across Ash street and up and down this line walked Gerdes, Sam Wolf and other notables of the precinct, some of them going so far as to pull voters' tickets out of their fingers to make sure that they had the right one and were voting in favor of cheap whisky. During the two hours the polls were open 320 votes were cast, the free whisky voters being men of leisure deposited their ballots early while a host of Holland's friends, who are honest workingmen could not come in till their day's work was done, and a long string of them were shut out by the closing of the polls. There was much loud talk and several incipient fights which were promptly checked by the police, who were out in force with Chief Parrish at their head.

The following is a list of the delegates elected: N Versteeg, Alex Lewis, Peter Wagner, James J Gallagher P Kelly Con Ryan T Stapleton, E Dunne, Jas. Olmstett. They are supposed to be in favor of Burlebach but Tim Stapleton most emphatically denies he is that kind of a man. The friends of cheap whisky claim to have gained a victory but Monday will show whether they have or not.

In the Third ward there was but little interest manifested it being evidently a foregone conclusion that the republican nominee for councilman would be elected. The following delegates were chosen to go through the usual form of nominating: P C Smith, Wm Beck, H M DeFrance, C C Scott, H Fleischstein, E B McFadenshall, Wm Church.

BRIEF MENTION.

The new hotel at Tacoma will be opened about July 1.

The Stars will play the Vancouver baseball club at Oregon City next Sunday.

Charles J St... Fox will deliver a lecture on art in Masonic hall Friday June 20.

Joseph Kalbach was yesterday admitted to citizenship in the state circuit court.

Josie Smith a cyprian committed suicide at Astoria Wednesday night by shooting herself with a revolver.

A gang of men are employed in grading and otherwise improving the extension of Twenty first street between E and G.

River report yesterday: Riparia, at a stand; Umatilla, rose nine inches; Brownsville rose two inches; Portland, rose two inches.

Capt Turner of the police force who has been in poor health for some time will take a short vacation at the beach in hope that the sea breezes may benefit him.

Delinquent tax payers by calling at the office of the chief of police and paying up any time within the next two or three days will save themselves trouble and, what is more important, costs.

An attractive feature of the entertainment at the First Presbyterian church this evening will be instrumental music on the violin and guitar by Mr A P Vesen and brother of the Durand Organ Company.

Himes, the printer, has just issued a handsome lithograph of Blaine made by Epting from E W Moore's crayon portrait. It shows that the art of lithographing has reached a high state of proficiency in Portland.

The lawn social announced for this evening by the young people of Calvary church has been postponed on account of the social to be given at the First Presbyterian church for the benefit of the North Portland mission.

Band of Hope No 1 will hold its regular meeting this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock in the W C T U hall on Washington between First and Second streets. All children cordially invited and members earnestly requested to be present.

Parties were yesterday examining the building at Nos. 91 and 93 Front street, belonging to Hon Ben Stark with the purpose of contracting for the job of tearing it down, it being the intention of the owner to have it replaced by one of modern style.

A large number of people are preparing to take a trip to the sea shore by the Wide West to-morrow. Those who go may confidently expect to spend a pleasant day. All should take wraps and overcoats as the sea breeze is much cooler than the summer winds which prevail here.

The water company are laying a six inch main on Taylor street from Eighth to Twelfth street to connect with the main on Twelfth street. This will give the residents in that elevated section an increased supply of water and greater pressure, an accommodation which will give them great satisfaction.

PERSONAL.

Mr David Robertson and bride left yesterday morning for California overland. They will remain in San Francisco several weeks.

Henry T Dittenhoefer of Dittenhoefer Haas & Co and Mark A. Mayer of Fleischner, Mayer & Co left this week over the Northern Pacific for New York.

Mrs T Paige and daughter of San Francisco and Mrs S W Sperry and daughters of Stockton arrived by the last steamer on a pleasure trip. They left yesterday morning for The Dalles and will return to-night. Next week they will go to the Sound, thence to Fraser river and probably to Alaska.

City View Races.

On next Sunday June 15 an unusually fine programme will be given at the City View park, consisting of running and trotting races. There has been engaged a good brass band which will furnish music for those who wish to dance. Two fast and commodious steamers have been chartered which will leave the foot of Taylor street every half hour. The races which take place have created quite a stir the past few days, and will be worth seeing. Those who wish to spend a pleasant day should avail themselves of this excursion and get away from the city for a few hours recreation. Pools will be sold Saturday night at the Cosmopolitan, corner First and Alder streets. In the trotting two-mile two in three race, Waterford, B. Bee, E B under a May Win ter and Captain Schneider's Lucy Weaver are entered. For the running race B ... Forest King and Jim M... are entered. This will be a one-half mile dash, sweepstakes.

RIVERSIDE PARK.—This park will be thrown open to the public Sunday, June 15th. It is situated about seven or eight miles south of Portland on the Willamette. A large hall on a bluff for dancing pavilion has been erected. Prizes will be given for running, jumping, throwing heavy hammer, etc. There will be a large number of athletes on hand from different parts of the Pacific coast, also an unknown from Chicago who 18 years can not be beat in his specialties. Round trip 50 cents; admission to grounds free; restaurant and refreshments on board.

Presbyterian Entertainment.

This evening at 8 o'clock the entertainment for the benefit of the North Portland mission will be given by the ladies of the First Presbyterian church in their vestry. Some intimation of the nature of the programme was given in yesterday's paper and it promises to be very interesting. Refreshments at the close of the entertainment. Admission 25 cents.

Special Sale of Books.

I have secured a new lease to my store 171 First street and as I am going to paint up and make some improvements I will sell off a large stock of books, stationery, albums, family bibles, prayer books, scrap books, account books, etc., at greatly reduced prices. By all means, for a short time only, so as I easily ... secure bargains while you have the chance, Geo H. Hill, City Book store, 171 First street.

Come to Stay.

Mr S Friedman, the well known and old-time pioneer in the coffee business, has returned after an absence of eleven months and opened an elegant place on Oak street between Front and First. He is as usual ready to serve the public with the best coffee in the city. Mr Friedman says he has come to stay and invites the public who favor their patronage ... he ... him as in former years and patronize him. Everything new in his line. The ladies' department is unsurpassed. Call and see him at once.

THE EAST SIDE.

DEMOCRATIC CITY CONVENTION.

An open convention of democrats to nominate candidates for the various city offices was held at Hepbach's hall last evening.

W T Burney called the meeting to order and stated its object.

E O Dean was elected chairman and R. L. Gillespie secretary.

Nominations being next in order, were proceeded with in the order following with the result as stated.

For recorder—R L Gillespie was nominated and there being no other nominations he was elected by acclamation.

Marshal—Geo L Linville, the present incumbent, and R J Tobinson were nominated. Linville receiving 121 votes, against 23 for Robinson was declared the choice of the convention for marshal.

Treasurer—F E Logan, the present incumbent was nominated and there being no opposition was elected by acclamation.

COUNCILMEN

A recess was taken for the citizens of each ward to select candidates for councilmen, resulting as follows:

First Ward—Louis Nicolai was chosen by 48 votes against 11 for H. H. Kiessling.

Second Ward—Joseph Burkhart was elected by acclamation.

Third Ward—Michael F Brady received the nomination without opposition.

The convention, being called to order, reports were submitted in accordance with the above, and the various nominations for councilmen were ratified by the convention by acclamation.

For city central committee the chairman appointed T. E Turnbull, of the first ward, Dr O H Rafferty of the second ward, and H C. Myers of the third ward. Adjourned.

CHICKEN RAID

Pam Kelly's place south of the city received its periodical visit of midnight marauders night before last. This time his chicken roost was raided and the whole lot of thieves appropriated excepting one rooster which the plunderers considerately left for him to make a fresh start with. But he has grown weary raising chickens for others' benefit, and intends taking a rest on the chicken business for a while.

THROWN FROM A CART

Louis Myers, a young man employed by Geo Strube & Co was driving their delivery cart yesterday when the horse made a sudden start near the corner of Fourth and L streets, jolting the lad over the wheel to the ground whereby he sustained a bad scalp wound across the forehead. Dr Royal attended him.

THE FOURTH—FURTHER ARRANGEMENTS

The celebration committee have been fortunate in securing Hon L F Grover as orator of the day, a gentleman whose ability to do justice to the task he has accepted need no recommendation, also Rev John W Sellwood as chaplain and Joseph N Sturm an elocutionist of more than ordinary ability as reader of the Declaration of Independence. Prof E Bullock has also accepted an invitation to organize a choir and conduct the vocal exercises of the day which will consist of singing of national and patriotic airs which will leave nothing wanting in this score. M Stoker, captain of the Ka Ki Halico Rodads has already mustered about fifty into his company and the cry is "Still they come." Their turnout fully armed and equipped, is looked forward to with much curiosity and interest. In view of the probability or certainty of Willamette park not being large enough for the occasion a committee has been appointed to confer with the street commissioner in regard to securing the use of a portion of P street, adjacent to the park for the purpose of erecting refreshment stands thereon. The committees are working with a will and indications point to a very successful result of their labors.

NOTES

By a misprint in yesterday's report, Chief Engineer E H Sprague was made to read ex chief.

The tax roll of school district No 21 has been completed by George Perry school clerk and is now open for inspection at his office on Fourth street, between J and K.

The erection of the building on the corner of Fourth and D for the new carriage establishment was commenced yesterday. The proprietors are Messrs Price & Pierce recently arrived from the east.

Citizens of East Portland evidently believe in keeping a good officer when they get one, as testified by the nomination of George Linville last night for city marshal. He has already served two terms and his renomination shows the appreciation of the people of his efficiency.

The adjourned convention of Third ward citizens occurred at the firemen's hall last evening, J J Kelly in the chair. No business was transacted and the meeting adjourned to attend the democratic convention, and to reassemble at the call of the committee, which consists of J J Kelly, Denis Sullivan and Michael Brady. The latter was nominated for councilman at the democratic convention so that it is probable the citizens have attained the object of their convention.

AMUSEMENTS.

HAMPTON COLLEGE STUDENTS.—The amusement loving public will have an opportunity of hearing the famous jubilee singers of Hampton college, Virginia, to-night at Y M C A hall. They give the most unique and original concert given by any jubilee party. There will be a variety of music and song that will please everyone. Reserved seats can be secured at the book store of W B Ayer & Co.

DE VIVO'S ITALIAN OPERA.—The sale of season tickets begins to-day at 9 A. M. at Cornelius drug store and will close at 6 P. M. Subscribers will have the privilege of selecting their seats. The sale for one or more performances will commence to-morrow morning. The following extracts from our exchanges will show the merit of the company:

Madame Godini was a charming Norma. Her voice is a clear soprano of sweet quality and powerful in the upper register. She sings with taste and good expression.—New York Herald.

Signor Baldanza of the Strakosch opera company has the most magnificent tenor voice that we have heard in New York since the days of Wachtel. He sings with true Italian accent and expression. His high C in the aria of Il Trovatore aroused the audience to a pitch of enthusiasm.—New York Herald.

The tenor Signor Baldanza carried off the honors of the evening. Each number from the opening romanza to the Si la Stanchezza with Mme Zeppilli in the prison scene was rapturously applauded and in the grand aria, the Quella Pira, in which he takes the high C was redemanded. Mme Zeppilli, the contralto has a voice of fine quality, while her acting in the arduous part of Azucena is full of color and great force. Signor Villani distinguished himself as Count di Luna in the aria of Il balen, and received a well deserved round of applause.—San Francisco Call.

THE "HIDDEN HAND."—Whitley's original Hidden Hand company made its first appearance last evening at New Market theater for a season of three nights. The theater was comfortably filled. The comedy drama of Capitola or The Hidden Hand was presented in a manner which if not startling or extraordinary proved at least acceptable and entertaining to the audience. This play is dramatized from the familiar novel written by Mrs Southworth and the plot and incidents of the story are well known to readers of fiction and theater goers. The dramatized version of the novel presented last night differs in many respects from the one generally played. The play has been greatly condensed and it must, in truth be said materially improved. As rendered last evening the performance may be characterized as negatively good without special brilliancy. There were several features which were subject to criticism but the audience seemed to appreciate the play generally, the interest at times approaching positive enthusiasm. Miss Fannie Francis who assumed the character of Capitola is an actress strongly reminding one of Kate Putnam. However she seems to lack the vivacity and spirit possessed by Miss Putnam. Her acting was quite good at times positively clever. She appeared to much better advantage in the second and third acts than in the first. Her songs incidental to the piece were well received. The police court scene at the conclusion of the first act, was exceedingly funny and kept the audience in roars of laughter. Officer McGuire personated by W J Ellsford was a capital bit of character acting and his efforts did not lack proper appreciation. Of the remainder of the cast a passing notice will suffice. Elwin Wight played the character of Major Warfield, or Old Hurricane in as windy and blustering a way as the occasion seemed to require. B b V Ferguson gave Wool in much the usual old way. He is very clever in his songs and specialties. Black Donald was fairly given by Mr Ellsford who doubled in the cast. The support was reasonably good. Sam Char as personated Colonel Gabriel Le Noir the false guardian. Horace Bryant his son Craven Le Noir. V C Barrett, Herbert Grayson a true Virginian. Marie Royal Clara Day, Anna M Quinn Duress Knight, Nellie Powers, the Unknown. As Jim, the newsboy and Pete, the lively darkey Ed Haley is quite original and his songs and dances proved an amusing feature. The play is very well mounted and ran smoothly. The scene is laid in the sunny south where the characteristics of genuine southern hospitality are truly and naturally pictured with the surroundings of the colored folks in their happy gathering and in their superstitious fears and ignorance.

Hidden Hand will be repeated this evening. To-morrow afternoon a matinee performance will be given and Saturday night the farewell performance will be rendered.

THE "GENERAL DELIVERY."

Five Minutes at a Postoffice Window—Flirtations, Jealousies and Suspicions that Sport Around a Pigeon Hole.

When a girl begins to receive letters away from home there is something funny about it," said Post-office Clerk Norris while in one of his philosophical moods the other day. "You may depend upon it she is in for a flirtation and the chances are that she will regret the step. There is no window in the postoffice where such a fine opportunity is afforded to study human character in all its phases as at the 'general delivery.' Of course, the females attract the most attention, and it is a source of wonder what becomes of some of them. We can tell when a young lady begins her flirtations. Not being well versed in either postal laws or the way of the world she will give two or three names to the beaux she meets. She will ask for letters in each name but as we can only deliver to one she fails to receive the other two or else must make her selection of which she will have. That girl is marked and she receives no more epistles unless in the name she gave originally. The old stagers know this and their letters come addressed to the same person. The manners of the steady callers at the window undergo wonderful changes. When they first appear they are quiet and inclined to be modest. Soon they become bold, and as this increases so does the gaudiness of their attire and the amount of paint and powder on their faces. Finally they disappear and go no one knows where and you can only conjecture. The steady visitors at the window change each year and as fast as one set falls out a new one takes its place. Ever since we have been in the new building there are many new faces, and the old ones have taken to themselves wings.

One of the most remarkable things that has come under our experience here was the rush of females for letters about the year 1878 when times were hard and money scarce. There were a great many husbands watching about the office in those times. I remember one case where the lord of the mansion had captured a letter which his wife received from a friend of hers. He followed her to the office, and when a letter was given her he grabbed for it. There was a scuffle, in which brute force predominated. He hastily read the letter, cursed the man who wrote it, and sailed out of the building vowing to have the fellow's blood. As I did not hear of a murder I suppose the trouble was amicably adjusted. Jealous and suspicious husbands are a constant source of annoyance to us. Scarcely a day passes but some man rushes up to the window and wants to know if a lady dressed in such and such style obtained a letter. Was it in a man's handwriting? how long ago was it delivered to her? which door did she leave by? and a dozen other questions. We know his ailment in a second. He obtains no satisfaction from us because the orders are never to reveal the identity of any person who receives letters. The fellow usually fumes and raves but the orders are imperative. There was a case here some years ago in which a woman took all sorts of chances. Her husband watched day and night and even had detectives but the woman was smarter than all of them. If they left their post for an instant she was at the window and secured her tender missive. The husband was a wealthy merchant and he appealed to the postmaster. After a great deal of persuasion the latter agreed to give the husband one of the letters addressed to his wife. The poor fellow opened it, read the contents and fell even on the floor in a swoon. He did not shoot his wife or any one else, but had his friends to intercede with her, and point out her error. There was a reconciliation. I afterwards learned, and they moved away from Philadelphia. You should know that letters are never delivered from the window unless the person to whom they are addressed calls for them or sends a written order. Husbands often demand their wives' letters and when we tell them to produce the order they go away. Then we watch for them for invariably they return with an order and the fun begins. 'Where do you reside?' we ask if there are doubts as to the order being genuine. The chances are that the man lives away up or down town and then we want to know how he could secure the order from his wife so quickly. The truth is they go round the corner and write the orders themselves and when we ask for a receipt for the letter they are caught short.

There are many who carry on illicit correspondence too and when we know that they are asking for letters in assumed names we question them. The result of this is a row. When we catch a woman however she acknowledges that she is wrong and hastens away fearing an exposure.

The migratory population all receive their letters here. The foreigners are the worst to handle. An Englishman always refuses to give his first name. He will ask for a letter for Mr Brown or Mr Smith. An Irishman will say yes to every question but when he is asked the number of the house where he resides he cannot tell so he must travel all the way home to ascertain this and his chances are that the letter is not for him. The foreigners are always expecting remittances and if an epistle fails to arrive at the time they think it should they think it is lost for certain. And the funny part of it is that every delayed or missing letter is said to contain money. If that is the case there must be barrels of cash which some one filches, for of the hundreds who make this complaint we never knew of their receiving a farthing from abroad."—Philadelphia Record.

A New View of Charles II
Quarterly Review

The brilliant correspondence with Robert Moray by whose appointment as deputy secretary during his absence Lauderdale preserved his hold upon Charles contains matter of deep interest. The notices of the king's habits and way of speech passing between the two men with whom he lived in closer intimacy than with any other members of his court are too numerous and too much bound up with their context to be inserted here. He was then in the prime of his manly vigor. Moray speaks of him as constantly in the saddle, on one day he can not be got to sign dispatches because he has just mounted his horse to ride fourteen miles to dine with Lord Herbert, on another day he covers sixty miles rising at dawn of a summer day and returning to consult with Moray at midnight, or again he is fox hunting or riding to see foot races on Banstead downs. His keenness in the scientific movement of the time is illustrated by the fact that many of Moray's letters describe his conversations in the royal laboratory. We feel from these letters how pleasant must have been the hours spent with him; how shrewd with all his vagabond habits he was in business, and how active and penetrating was his mind, how clearly he saw through the intrigues and jealousies which surround him, how alone he stood in his generous views of commercial affairs, how bright was his talk, how cheery his companionship, how cleverly he went through disagreeable work that had to be done, how resolute he was to do nothing disagreeable that he could avoid or postpone. We feel as all other details of his life make us feel, that but for his insincerity and for the settled and invincible Bohemian era which he had acquired in exile, Charles would have stood high among the ablest of English sovereigns.

The Cholera Germ.

A vote of 125,000 marks has been unanimously granted to the doctors who have risked their lives in their brave and thorough investigation of the causes from which the cholera is supposed to spring and that, too in its most unhealthy habitats among the swamps of India. The hero of the hour at Berlin at present is Dr Koch, the president of the commission who has just returned from India, where he has discovered the cholera germ. In appearance he is described as of medium height, very thin, with a serious, eager spiritualistic student's face. His hair is brown, but his head is becoming gray and this together with his glasses makes him seem older than 40 or 41 years. He studied medicine at Gottingen and afterward pursued his microscopic studies of bacteria at Breslau, under Professor Cohn. Geheimer Rath Koch has been known to the scientific world for some time as a conscientious and accurate observer, but to the non-scientific world his name was unknown until his discovery of the cholera germ. It now promises to be as famous as that of Jenner or Harvey. Dr Koch is to receive 100,000 marks and the remainder will be divided between his two assistants and the analytical chemist who accompanied the party. The grand banquet in their honor took place on the 13th instant in the Central hotel Berlin. They had a special audience with the emperor and were lately at a dinner given on their account by the minister of the interior. Germany has in former years suffered much and frequently from visitations of the cholera. It is therefore easy to comprehend with what feelings of gratitude and thankfulness any one must be regarded who can really help to ward off the inroads of the disease.

A Sudden Rise in Beef.
Arkansaw Traveler.

When the federal General Wilson made his raid into Alabama his foraging parties were out in every direction as the column moved on. One of them called at a farm house in search of meat, and finding a likely steer on the plantation, the farmer was offered $5 in greenbacks for the animal. "Gentlemen, that ar steer is worth a good deal more'n that," he replied as he looked the party over, "but seein' it's you I reckon I shall have to sacrifice suthin'." One of the federals was trying to get at the animal when the farmer suddenly yelled out: "Gentlemen, beef has gone up over 100 per cent in the last five minutes. You can't have him for less'n $10." The federals hadn't time to ask why the market had changed so suddenly, for a troop of confederate cavalry, which the old man had been first to sight came charging out of the woods and in the riot which took place the beef question was run out of sight down toward Wilson's lines.

THE PRESIDENCY.

[CORRESPONDENCE OF THE OREGONIAN.]

PORTLAND, June 12, 1884.

To the Editor of the Oregonian:

Your contemporary, the Daily Standard is evidently afraid that the presidency will be abolished before he could glory in the election of a democratic president once—only once more—a democratic party king and spoils would be do again has been the ardent prayer of every good democrat for the past twenty years. Some one told me the other day that the presidency is only a mere figurehead and it would be of no consequence who would be elected. If that is the case why is there so much ado about it? Why so much excitement? Why such great effort—so much sacrifice so much money spent by each party to secure the presidency to their candidate? It costs the nation more money every four years to elect their president than necessary, to carry on a little war. It strikes me the money could be used for a better purpose for instance for the improvement of our navy or rivers or a system of irrigation for California, etc., etc. I do not know that China has a superior navy to ours, but that she can do us immense damage to our coast and commerce, by blockading our harbors? And that Uncle Sam cannot give us immediate relief? But this has nothing to do with the present contest. The money spent by political parties to secure the election of their candidate, is not spent out of pure love for him. No it is spent for a more practical purpose. The party that wins expects every cent to come back, and good deal more, and the whole nation has to suffer by it. I shudder to think of the bill the democratic party has against us, a bill of nearly twenty five years standing. Whenever they come into power, God help us! Mr Editor all this excitement, all this expense, all this fear of invasion by hungry democrats etc. etc. can be avoided by abolishing the presidency. Some one asked me the other day "But what will you do? Will you have a king or a queen—perhaps Mrs Dunway?" neither of them would suit our taste. For the presidency we would substitute a responsible and reliable executive council composed of the heads of the various departments of the government to be appointed by congress and subject to removal by that body. The council to elect the chairman from time to time say every year. This method works very well in Switzerland, a republic over 600 years old. The advantages mentioned are only a few of the many in favor of the abolition of the presidency. There is too much power vested in one man. It is not republican. It is a poor imitation of royalty. It is not democratic. The people have no direct vote on it. They will nominate the same for a poodle dog as for Blaine or Logan if one that or their party ... of a party (ring) and a danger ous institution and may at any time terminate with the downfall of our liberties. Therefore I say no more party and no one-man power but a more democratic—an executive council. Yours respectfully,

E. A.

Gen. Lee Declines to Sell His Fame.

General Lee, at the close of the war, received innumerable offers of engagements in commercial enterprises. Insurance companies and railroads and many large corporations at the south were anxious to pay him any salary he might ask, and solely for the use of his name without any labor on his part or the incurring of any responsibility whatever. A committee of English men with the duke of Marlborough at the head offered him for his use an English estate and one of the oldest counties in England, coupled with a guarantee of an income of £3,000 a year as long as he lived. He gratefully declined all of these offers and accepted the presidency of Washington and Lee university at a salary of $3000. Here he earned his living as the hardest worker in a hard work of a faculty in training the youth of the country up to the very hour of the paralytic stroke which immediately preceded his death.

General Lee left three sons. They too, received many offers of a similar kind and likewise refused them. Two of these sons are now prosperous planters in Virginia. The third succeeded his father in the presidency of Washington and Lee university and has filled the position with credit for the last fifteen years.

The true American spirit shines in General Lee's example, the spirit which prompted Washington and his generals when they retired from the public service, enriched only with the recollections of their great achievements, and scorning to make merchandise of their fame.

Making It Safe.
Wall Street News.

A Boston man who wanted to raise $10,000 the other day found a banker who would take his paper if favorably endorsed and the right sort of collateral left as security.

"I have plenty of Northern Pacific stock," explained the customer, "and I'll bring you in $15,000 worth."

"Fifteen thousand! Why, man alive I should want $30,000 face value of that stock!"

"No!"

"While I might possibly risk $10,000 on my $30,000 of that stock but as I'd like to make these transactions safe you'd better bring in ... odd $500!"

HOME-LIKE.

"I prefer to come here to trade," said a customer from the Dalles, "because everything seems so home like."

"I am glad you feel that way," replied the polite salesman addressed, "for it is our endeavor to make all welcome."

This little dialogue indicates one of the many reasons why there is such a throng at the great clothing emporium of Kohn & Steinbach. While it is true that they manufacture exclusively for the city trade, and consequently set the styles and introduce the latest novelties, they are glad to see their friends from what ever quarter they come, knowing that their purchases will result in their being well and fashionably dressed.

But there is another inducement offered by Kohn & Steinbach which cannot be too often mentioned, namely the prices which are always so much lower than elsewhere that other houses have practically given up competing with them. To those who have been in the habit of dealing in small retail establishments their present immense stock is simply bewildering. All their mens dress wear remarkable specialties, which are their fifteen styles of all wool suits at fifteen dollars each. The garments selling in other clothing houses for twenty dollars, second ten styles of parts for four collars, fully equal to the usual six dollar grade in most establishments. In considering these very low prices remember that we give full value or the money and we can do so. Manufacturing all our goods in New York and buying for cash enables us to defy competition.

TRADE AND COMMERCE.

THURSDAY, June 12.

The Snake river at Riparia is at a stand to-day. At Umatilla the Columbia rose 9 inches, at Celilo 4 inches and at Bonneville 2 inches. At Portland the Willamette rose one-tenth of an inch. The comparison this morning with last Thursday is as follows:

	June 12.	June 5.
Riparia	16 ft	14 ft 4 in
Umatilla	22 ft 9 in	22 ft 6 in
Celilo	19 ft 4 in	18 ft 2 in
Bonneville	26 ft 2 in	25 ft
Portland	20 ft	19 ft 6 in

At the close of the week under review we are enjoying clear to cloudy weather. For several days the sky has been overcast and some little rain has fallen. The favor, though small, is welcomed as spring wheat was in need of moisture. Grain crops in the Willamette valley have really undergone no change as regards prospective outturn in the week. Winter wheat is growing finely, and with new moisture before harvest both winter and spring wheats will yield well. Throughout the eastern section the outlook is believed to be less favorable than desired although there is really little thus far to cause a discouraging belief.

There is need of rain to insure a full crop, but the harvest will be abundant without this. Cool weather has greatly helped growing grains in the past few days. California has reported heavy showers, and fears of damage to fields were entertained, particularly if a warm sun followed. But instead of this came two cool days and one of hard rain, as will be seen by the telegraphic report below. Such a rainfall at this date is a new experience with Californians, and it may prove hurtful to the heavy grain. There is really very little ground for apprehension as to coast cereal crops at this writing. They are believed to be quite safe from any important danger of dryness. Oregon's spring months were unusually dry ones, and there is no question but that moisture would be of great benefit. The English crops have been thrown back by unseasonable and inclement weather, which, at the close, is more seasonable.

FREIGHTS—Spot business for the week has been limited to the taking of the wooden ship Red Cross for wheat. The rate paid is withheld, but quoted at 42s 6d for orders. In futures, if any transactions were made they were not given to the public. Some time ago we reported the charter of two wooden vessels for next season at 40s, Cork, United Kingdom, Havre or Antwerp. Advices confirm this and name a third vessel as taken at the same rate, all three belonging to one firm. The available spot tonnage for wheat carriage has been cleaned up by the charter of the Red Cross. Near at hand are the Woodlark and the City of Delhi, both chartered for salmon from Astoria, and the Alameda and Kirkwood, which are understood to be open. The German brig Aeolus, 550 tons, nearly due from Carmen Island with a salt cargo, will also be on the market. To arrive the list has shown little increase in the week and no inducements are held out to attract tonnage. The C. S. Hulbert loads general cargo at New York for this port, and is the only new announcement. In the river under charter are seven vessels, one loaded with wheat, one loading flour, one loading salmon, three finishing with salmon and one loading wheat. The open list is reduced to three vessels, which are not available for wheat.

WHEAT—A very dull market has obtained with the few buyers in the market steadily bidding down. At the close $1 30@1 32½ is named as possible for Walla Walla, and $1 40@1 42 for valley. Shippers are well out of the market, but one being named as needing wheat. Millers have bought very little, and then only at their own prices. The loading fleet has been filled, with the exception of the Red Cross, now in berth. As no vessels are at hand available for wheat, there is no new business probable, and as buying would only be speculative, the situation is essentially a buyers' one. Walla Walla has been sold below $1 30, but the sales were forced ones, and holders generally ask more than we deem it safe to quote. Advices from the other side have continued to be of an easy tenor, and the same may be said of the American markets. Chicago, as usual, has ruled irregular. San Francisco, at the close, shows a better feeling, but for the week has been easy. At present there is some request for stiffening vessels to be finished later. Futures are firm but not active.

The quantity of Pacific coast wheat afloat is now 4,096,366 centals and flour 440,691 barrels, of which 842,429 centals and 131,006 barrels is Oregon. This does not include that in ship and not cleared.

The aggregate supply of wheat in sight in the United States (exclusive of California and Oregon) and Canada June 4 was 17,978,600 bushels, and of corn, 5,452,530 bushels, against on the preceding weekly exhibit an aggregate of 17,297,600 bushels wheat, and 9,361,900 bushels corn; and, a year ago, an aggregate of 20,149,900 bushels wheat, and 13,442,350 bushels corn.

FLOUR—The foreign movement will be closed this week for the present, vessels on berth having almost filled up. The coastwise movement is very light, as is all exportation must be small for the remainder of the season. Standard brands are steadily held at $4 75. Others are weak at old prices.

MILLSTUFF—Supplies about equal to demand, and market has ruled steady. Quote jobbing prices: Bran, $14@15; chop, $22 50; middlings, $22 50@25; ground barley, $26@28; oat meal, $35.

OATS—A good demand has ruled for outside use, and stocks are materially reduced. Orders are at hand that cannot be readily filled. This situation has given holders an opportunity to advance pretensions, and they have asked and obtained up to 50 cents for choice feed. We quote feed lots at 48@50c for good to choice, with fair prospect of this being obtained for a time.

PROVISIONS—The Chicago markets materially advanced during the week, although lard and ribs backed down to-day. At the close pork gains 40c in the week, lard loses 5c, ribs gain 5c, and short ribs gain 10c. The local market is freely supplied, and values in some directions are weak. We quote jobbing prices: Bacon, 11½@12½c; best local hams, 16@17c; country local do, 13@14c; shoulders, 8@9c. Lard relatively steadier. Common in tins, 11c, and kegs, 11@12c; best local tins, 13@13½c; and eastern tins, 13@13½c.

CHEESE—Choice local sells at 16c. Other kinds 12½@14c for a good quality. The California now in stock is quite unsaleable owing to its poor condition and holders are anxious to dispose of it.

ONIONS—With under advices but jobbing at 1½@2c.

POTATOES—Sales of good old during the week 90@95c, and a steady market is had. New California Burbank at $1 50@1 75.

DRIED FRUITS—A dull and uninteresting market rules. Imports are less, but stocks are ample. Quote sun-dried apples 9@10c, factory apples in boxes 12@15c; eastern in barrels 9½c; pears sliced and boxed 15c; plums sun-dried 13@15c; boxed 14c; peaches 12@14c; Oregon prunes 12c; eastern and others 8@9½c; figs 9c; raisins $1 75@2 00 per full box.

FRUITS—Seasonable varieties sell readily if choice. Oranges dull at $4@5 50; lemons advanced to $7@7 50; limes $1 50; cherries 8c; currants 10c; strawberries 7c and steady; gooseberries 2½c; apricots $2 10 per box.

BUTTER—Choice qualities steady, while off grades drag. California roll, 25c; eastern tub, 22½c; local, 15@18c, with fancy roll bringing an advance.

POULTRY—Chickens have sold readily, and to-day are quoted at $4@5 for young and $6@7 for old. Turkeys not wanted at 12½@14c. Ducks and geese neglected and nominal.

EGGS—Sold up to 25c, but large arrivals forced values down, and 20c is had to-day, with prospect of still lower values.

HAY—Market steady at $12@15 for baled timothy. The low lands along the Columbia are being covered with water, but a rise of several feet will be required to reach timothy land. Wild hay is dull of sale.

WOOL—Arrivals for the week are less than for last week, yet they are free, more valley being sent in. A small business has been done, local mills being the principal buyers, and they have obtained fair to good qualities of eastern Oregon at 14½@16 cents, at the same time paying up to 17½ for the best grades. In some instances 16@18½ cents is reported to have been paid, but if so it was for very choice grades or for valley. Selling is not general, partly by reason of low prices and partly because buyers do not push things. As a quotation that can be deemed reliable, we name 15@17c for eastern Oregon and 16@18c for valley; more is only possible in extreme cases and for very choice. All advices are to the effect that dull markets are had. At San Francisco buyers have largely withdrawn from the market, and the few who remain refuse to duplicate last paying prices. In consequence receipts are being warehoused for the time. As a general thing we find that operators are afraid of the situation, and holders are not inclined to push sales. Trading thus promises to be of a slow and cautious character. Late New York mail dates report:

New clip Texas has arrived in liberal quantity, and the assortment of offerings is fair but buyers are not attracted to any material extent and limit their purchases to current requirements. The market consequently presents the same dull and unsatisfactory appearance noted for several months past. Manufactured goods continue to move slowly and a further reduction of the output is under consideration. Among knit goods manufacturers a proposition has been made to close three fourths of all the mills in the country, and in the event of the failure to carry out this plan an effort will be made to run only one-quarter of the machinery now in operation. Advices from primary sources report a steady accumulation of supplies, and from Texas we learn that eastern buyers are withdrawing. Confidence in the financial situation has not yet been restored and holders pursue a very cautious policy in making transactions.

HIDES, ETC.—For hides a weak market is had, but pelts and skins are steady. Quote, dry hides, 17@18c; green, 7@8c; tallow, 7c; dark beaver, $2@3 25 per lb; valley summer deerskins 21½c, do winter do, 24c, eastern Oregon summer do 23½c, do winter do 18c per lb; elk skins 12½c per pound. The following sell by the skin: Black bear $2@6, brown do 60c @$5; dark fisher, $2 50@6, pale do 60c@$1; silver fox $5@25, cross do $2@5, red do 15c@$1 50; lynx 37½@60c; prime dark marten, 25@75c; dark mink, 10@40c; land otter, $1 50@5 50; wolf 37½@50.

The Merchandise Markets.

The movement has been steadily large, both as regards importation and distribution. The moving of the wool clip has slightly eased the general situation although selling has been far from free, yet with something in sight money is more easily secured. City jobbers report a good call in all seasonable lines, and the import movement is a pretty certain index of the trade obtaining. A material increase in the salmon run with ruling firm values, together with good crop prospects, has benefited general trade. The fruit crop now being gathered has also proven a factor in the general increase. More confidence is felt in all directions as to the fall trade. Values for articles of home growth are not as great as could be desired, yet a larger outturn of all products will prove more than an offset. Merchandise values have shown few changes, and these have been determined by seasonable influences. The salmon run is certainly more satisfactory, both as to return with more and larger fish and canners are not complaining. In the absence of accurate information the true situation cannot be determined, yet if present general talk is at all indicative the season's up-put will not be far behind last year's. Other rivers are far behind, so that the Columbia workers will be greatly benefited by values. The movement for the week has been large. The Eskdale has sailed and the Coteworth doubtless filled up yesterday, and the Jamieson, Aberystwith Castle and Itata are receiving. Rail shipments for the week were: W. Hume 3000, Booth 975, Aberdeen 325, Myers 975; Union 325, J. Hume 900, a total of 8800 cases. Very few sales have been made public, and these were within the range of $1 25@1 27½ on river. The Sacramento run is about over and three canneries have closed. The season's pack is closely estimated at 51,000 cases. Canned goods are generally weak as the new canning approaches the market. Rice shows weakness in sympathy with San Francisco. Large spot stocks also prove a depressing influence. The Jolona is landing about 14,000 mats China. There is a strong desire to realize in some directions. Coal oil is plentiful and weak. Grain bags in small movement and firm. Other lines are largely controlled by San Francisco, and we present latest mail summary. Arrivals of new crop teas are free and the market shows more life; a marked decline in coffee of half a cent is noted all round; Island rice sold $5 75@6; Diamond B syrup sold at auction at 27½c, 37½c and 40c for barrels, kegs and cases; pepper higher; foreign salt advanced $1 per ton, with no stock in first hands; No. 1 mackerel lower; codfish firmly held; pig iron dull, prices for some descriptions being reduced; tin-plate, unchanged but holders are hopeful of an improvement; coal, in good supply and lower.

BEANS—The general weakness has resulted in a shading of local values in colored, and we quote small whites 3½c, butter 4½c, bayos 5@5½c.

BREAD, ETC.—Bakers quote ship 3½c, pilot 5½c, extra pilot 4½c, soda crackers 5@6c.

PICKLES—Kegs sell at $1 25@1 40.

COFFEE—Best Java, 20c; Costa Rica, 12½@13½c; Salvador and Guatemala, 11½@12½c.

COAL OIL—Quote 17@26c as to brand.

CANNED GOODS—Some qualities weak, yet quotations cannot be changed as yet. Quote corn $1 60; tomatoes, 2½s, $1 30; 3s, $4 25; pie peaches, $2@2 25; table peaches, $2 50@2 75; assorted pie fruits, 2½s $1 50@1 75; salmon, $4 25; assorted table do, $2 50.

RICE—The Chinese have been cutting prices under a pressure to realize, and China has sold below quotations. Quote Island $6 50 and China in red at $4 40@4 75.

SUGARS—Firm with good inquiry. We quote (A) patent cube, 10½c; (A) crushed, 10½c; dry granulated, 9¾c; golden C, 8¾c; extra golden C 8¾c; extra powdered, 11c; D 7¾c.

BAGS AND TWINE—Wool bags, 40@42½c for 3½ and 4 lb weight; grain bags firm at $7 75@8 July; fleece twine, 10c; sewing twine, 30@35c.

THE MEAT MARKET.

Quotations represent prices paid to dealers by slaughterers.

BEEF—None but grass fed in and this is generally very fat and brings 3½c gross.

VEAL—Large, 8@9c; small, 10c.

MUTTON—Plentiful; ewes, 1¾c; other, 2½c.

LAMBS—Choice bring $1 75.

HOGS—Choice fat, 6½c; fair to good, 5½c; dressed, 8@8½c.

A Mysterious Old Woman.

There are a good many eccentric characters scattered around over Colorado and probably more in the vicinity of Leadville than in any other part of the state, says the Leadville Democrat. One of the queer characters to whom the attention of travelers is always directed as they go over the road to Aspen is the old woman that lives in a little cabin just this side of the summit in the edge of the heavy growth of timber that abounds until the road reaches the timber line. No one knows her name or how she subsists. She lives there winter and summer, and is said to own a number of claims that are scattered about the mountain side. She manages to get assessment work done in some way, but so far as any one knows she has never taken out any mineral nor sold any of the properties. She is a mystery to all who have seen her, for that is all they can say. No one knows whither she came or where her relatives live, if she has any. How she makes enough to live on no one has any idea, and she does not seem to be inclined to enlighten them.

LOSS AND GAIN.

CHAPTER I.

"I was taken sick a year ago
With bilious fever.

"My doctor pronounced me cured, but I got sick again, with terrible pains in my back and sides, and I got so bad I

Could not move!

I shrunk!

From 228 pounds to 120! I had been doctoring for my liver, but it did me no good. I did not expect to live more than three months. I began to use Hop Bitters. Directly my appetite returned, my pains left me, my entire system seemed renewed as if by magic, and after using several bottles I am not only as sound as a sovereign, but weigh more than I did before. To Hop Bitters I owe my life. R. FITZPATRICK.

CHAPTER II.

"Malden, Mass., Feb. 1, 1880. Gentlemen—
I suffered with attacks of sick headache."

Neuralgia, female trouble, for years in the most terrible and excruciating manner.

No medicine or doctor could give me relief or cure until I used Hop Bitters.

"The first bottle

Nearly cured me;"

The second made me as well and strong as when a child;

"And I have been so to this day."

My husband was an invalid for twenty years with a serious

"Kidney, liver and urinary complaint,

"Pronounced by Boston's best physicians

"Incurable!"

Seven bottles of your bitters cured him, and I know of the "Lives of eight persons"

In my neighborhood that have been saved by your bitters,

And many more are using them with great benefit.

They almost

Do miracles!" —MRS. E. I. SLACK.

HOW TO GET SICK.—Expose yourself day and night; eat too much without exercise; work too hard without rest; doctor all the time; take all the vile nostrums advertised, and then you will want to know how to get well, which is answered in three words—Take Hop Bitters!

THE SCIENCE OF LIFE.

THE SCIENCE OF LIFE
KNOW THYSELF.

A Great Medical Work on Manhood.

Exhausted Vitality, Nervous and Physical Debility, Premature Decline in Man, Errors of Youth, and the untold miseries resulting from indiscretions or excesses. A book for every man, young, middle-aged and old. It contains 125 prescriptions for all acute and chronic diseases, each one of which is invaluable—so found by the author, whose experience for 23 years is such as probably never before fell to the lot of any physician. 300 pages, bound in beautiful French muslin, embossed covers, full gilt, guaranteed to be a finer work, in every sense—mechanical, literary and professional—than any other work sold in this country for $2 50, or the money will be refunded in every instance. Price only $1 00 by mail post-paid. Illustrative sample six cents. Send now. Gold medal awarded the author by the National Medical Association, to the officers of which he refers.

THE SCIENCE OF LIFE should be read by the young for instruction, and by the afflicted for relief. It will benefit all.—London Lancet.

There is no member of society to whom THE SCIENCE OF LIFE will not be useful, whether youth, parent, guardian, instructor or clergyman.—Tribune.

Address the Peabody Medical Institute, or Dr. W. H. Parker, No. 4 Bulfinch street, Boston, Mass., who may be consulted on all diseases requiring skill and experience. Chronic and obstinate diseases that have baffled the skill of all other physicians a specialty. Such treated successfully without an instance of failure. HEAL THYSELF. mhl6d&wly

DR. PAUL DE BREA

IS THE MOST SUCCESSFUL PHYSICIAN ON the Pacific coast in the treatment of all Chronic and Difficult Diseases of the Sexual Organs.

He will guarantee to cure any form of disease of the generative organs or private disease, if the patient follows his advice and treatment.

He has become an expert in the treatment of disease, weakness and derangement of the reproductive organs of both male and female, including diseases caused by the FOLLIES OF YOUTH, such as Spermatorrhea, or Seminal Weakness, or Loss of Perfect Vitality. Nearly two-thirds of all the chronic diseases spring either directly or indirectly from some derangement of the sexual system, and yet this subject is neglected by a majority of the Medical Profession.

Persons afflicted by any form of sexual disease or weakness often delay in calling upon the proper physician in time, from a sense of modesty; and sometimes from ignorance, and then the diseases to exist until their constitution becomes corrupted, their organization broken down, and the hope of future happiness blighted, until death becomes a welcome messenger to carry them out of their miserable existence. Everything strictly confidential under all circumstances. Lost manhood perfectly restored.

Catarrh, Bronchitis, Throat Diseases, Skin Diseases, Rheumatism, Kidney Complaint and all diseases of the Eye and Ear, Stomach and Bladder, he can cure with skill, if they are curable; and if not, he will tell you so.

Consultation free, and a list of printed questions sent to those living at a distance who cannot consult him personally. Enclose postage stamp for list.

SPRING

Is the season in which bad or poisoned blood is most apt to show itself. Nature, at this juncture, needs something to assist it in throwing off the impurities which have collected by the sluggish circulation of the blood during the cold winter months. Swift's Specific is nature's great helper, as it is a purely vegetable alterative and tonic.

Rev. L. B. Paine, Macon, Ga., writes: "We have been using Swift's Specific at the orphans' home as a remedy for blood complaints, and as a general health tonic, and have had remarkable results from its use on the children and employes of the institution. It is such an excellent tonic, and keeps the blood so pure that the system is less liable to disease. It has cured some of our children of Scrofula."

W. H. Gilbert, druggist, Albany, Ga., writes: "We are selling large quantities of Swift's Specific for a spring alterative and general health tonic, and with the best results. It is now largely used as a preventive and cure for Malaria. There are many remarkable evidences of its merit in this section."

The Great Drug House of Chicago.

We do not hesitate to say that for a year past we have sold more of Swift's Specific (S. S. S.) than all other Blood Purifiers combined, and with most astonishing results. One gentleman who used a half dozen bottles says it did him more good than treatment which cost him $1000. Another who has used it for Scrofulous affection reports a permanent cure from its use.

VAN SHAACK, STEVENSON & CO.

One gentleman who had been confined to his bed six weeks with Mercurial Rheumatism has been cured entirely, and speaks in the highest praise of S. S. S.
